Railroad Strike Voted For Dec. 30 By 5 Unions

Operating Chiefs Move to Force General Pay Rise From Congress

By Ben W. Gilbert

Chiefs of the five operating railroad brotherhoods yesterday ordered a general railroad strike starting December 30 in a move aimed to bolster the effort of non-operating railroad union officials to get Congress to validate an 8-cents-an-hour general wage boost.

Meeting in Cleveland, the union heads announced that 97.7 per cent of the 350,000 operating workers had voted for strike action.

The National (Railway) Mediation Board promptly announced that its three members would meet with representatives of the unions and the carriers in Chicago next Monday to confer on the situation.

"Progressive" Strike

The strike is to be "progressive," the union chiefs said, with 25 per cent of the Nation's railroads stopped as of 6 a. m. December 30, with an additional fourth of the roads stopped on each of the following three days, completely paralyzing the Nation's transportation system. The strike action was taken in protest against an award of a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to meet demands for a $3-a-day boost.

Meanwhile, Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson was scheduled to appear before the House Military Affairs at 10 a. m. today to protest against congressional action on the Truman-Crosser resolution approving an 8-cents-an-hour boost for the non-operating workers.

Approved by Senate

The resolution already has received overwhelming approval from the Senate and is slated to speed through to similar approval in the House unless the Administration can delay the measure long enough for President Roosevelt to return and work out a compromise.

The operating wage dispute is not covered by the resolution, but the two disputes actually are intimately tied together.

It is generally conceded that the Government would be compelled to allow the operating unions an 8-cent-an-hour boost—instead of 4 cents—if the "nonops" push their boost through—to preserve historic wage differentials.

Sliding Scale Plan

Vinson has approved a sliding-scale adjustment for the 1,100,000 nonoperating workers—from 10 cents in the lower brackets, tapered down to 4 cents for better-paid workers receiving wages comparable to those paid to the operating workers.

Railroad management which supported the resolution prepared late last week to place the alternative sliding scale in effect, but a National Mediation Board order blocked the action, it was learned. Vinson protested issuance of the order to War Mobilization Director Byrnes.

Chairman William M. Leiserson of the Mediation Board explained

German Praise Reported for U. S. Bomb Accuracy

By the Associated Press

Wellwood E. Beall, engineering vice president of Boeing Aircraft Co., reported here yesterday on his return from England that one of the most astonishing compliments to the accuracy of American bombing, was a radio message Lieut. Gen. Ora C. Eaker received from the German Luftwaffe congratulating the American bombers on their avoidance of a hospital in the attack on Regensburg.

The plane factories which were the target occupied three parts of a rectangle, the fourth corner being a hospital. So accurate was the bombing, said Beall, that the factories were destroyed, but the hospital untouched. Two bombs fell just inside the fence of the hospital yard, but did not damage any buildings. The Luftwaffe, he said, expressed its inability to understand how such accuracy was achieved.

4 Big Distillers Involved

Liquor Shortage to Be Probed By District Grand Jury

By Joseph Paull

The District grand jury will soon begin a sweeping investigation of the liquor industry in an attempt to determine where the responsibility for the chaotic situation in the liquor supply lies, it was learned yesterday.

Involved in the probe, under direction of the Justice Department, are the four largest producers in the Nation. Subpenas have been sent out from District Court for records and documents relating to practices within the industry.

Wendell Berge, Assistant Attorney General, said the probe will take the form of an antitrust proceeding. For several weeks agents under his direction have been seeking evidence.

Hiram Walker & Sons, Inc.; Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc.; National Distillers Products Corp., and Schenley Distillers Corp. were directed to produce records and documents relating to the following:

1. Ownership of stock in the four companies and ownership of stock and share capital by those companies in various subsidiary companies engaged in distilling, processing, blending, rectifying, bottling, distributing and selling distilled spirits, wines and alcoholic beverages, including beer.

2. Purchase of assets, plants and facilities of any and all corporations, partnerships, and businesses engaged in distilling, processing, blending, rectifying, bottling, distributing and selling distilled spirits, wines and alcoholic beverages.

3. Records relating to the purchase and acquisition of stocks of distilled spirits, wines and other alcoholic beverages.

4. Records relating to withdrawals, withholdings or private rationing of alcoholic beverages normally distributed under established brand names.

5. Information relating to the packaging and marketing of alcoholic beverages, including introduction or use of bottles commonly referred to as "fifths" and "tenths," and elimination or restriction of larger containers.

6. Information relating to licensing, contracts, or agreements

Flu Epidemic Wanes; Cases Total 150,000

District Authorities Urge Continuance Of All Precautions

The flu epidemic is on its way out of Washington, health officers reported yesterday. At the same time they said the number of cases since the scourge began November 29 now has reached an estimated total of 150,000.

Although elementary school absences mounted 1 per cent to 16,710 or 32 per cent of the total elementary enrollment, school statisticians said such a rise was usual during a cold wave because mothers of small children kept youngsters home as a precautionary measure. They said the rise could not be attributed to new flu cases.

Teacher absences were reduced to 242 in the whole system from 286 the day before.

Calls for doctors at the District Medical Society's bureau dropped about 25 per cent, according to Theodore Wiprud, secretary.

Capital Transit officers said the company had fewer absences among its operators, and said no excess overcrowding had been noted on streetcars and buses.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland warned, however, that usual precautions should not be relaxed and urged adults and children to avoid crowds, wash hands before meals, guard nose and throat when sneezing or coughing. He advised that all eating utensils be cleaned with scalding water.

Pointing out that the present outbreak has not been accompanied by fatal pneumonia complications such as arose in the 1918 pandemic, Dr. Ruhland said that the District would have had about 900 deaths so far if fatalities had taken place at the World War rate.

Deaths from pneumonia and influenza from December 1 to 15, inclusive, have totaled 34, he point-

Alcohol Allotment For Medicine Boosted

Because of the present outbreak of mild influenza, the allotment of alcohol used in the manufacture of cough medicines should be increased 25 per cent, the U. S. Public Health Service decided yesterday.

"After considering the various factors involved," USPHS officials informed Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, "we have recommended to the War Production Board that the allotment of alcohol for the purpose above mentioned be increased by 25 per cent for a period of three months."

House Probe Group to Prod Brewster Firm

Plane Output to Be Watched Until 1500 Corsairs Are Made

By Mary Spargo

In an unprecedented move yesterday, a House Naval Affairs Subcommittee undertook the responsibility of riding herd over an aircraft factory until 1500 Corsair fighters desperately needed by the United States Navy roll off the production lines.

Chairman Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the full committee, made public an interim report on the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., under investigation for two months because of long-standing past production failures.

Most unusual feature of the 61-page report was the assertion that the committee proposes to continue its surveillance of the plant, receiving monthly reports on progress from the Navy Department.

Cancellation of the Navy contract will be recommended if the production schedule is not met or if there is the least outbreak of labor difficulty at the plants, which were beset with labor troubles until Henry J. Kaiser, war production genius, took over the plants October 7.

The report calls upon the Department of Justice to "accept its responsibility and prosecute the flagrant violations of Federal law" which the subcommittee charges were committed by Thomas V. de Lorenzo, president of the Brewster union, Local 365, UAW-CIO.

De Lorenzo is described as a "self-confessed perjurer, openly contemptuous of his country's laws and of the Navy," a "power-drunk union leader," "a novice in the field of labor leadership" who started his career late in 1939 by joining

Hard-Coal Use Will Be Slashed ⅛, Consumers Told

Interior Secretary Ickes yesterday directed hard coal consumers not to accept more than seven-eighths of their anticipated anthracite requirements for the coal year ending next March 31. The action was taken because of the hard coal shortage, and consumers will be permitted to make up the deficit by using some bituminous coal.

(Story on Page 12.)

Ickes declared, meanwhile, in an address before the Federal Bar Association, that the coal problem could have been solved last April 30 by an increase of $1.25 a day in miners' wages, when the coal operators were offering only $1 a day.

100-Gallon Still in Oxon Hill Smashed by Police, U. S. Agents

Prince Georges County (Md.) police and Treasury agents last night smashed an illicit whisky still in the basement of a one-story unoccupied dwelling off the Livingston rd., 2 miles over the District Line in Oxon Hill, Md., and confiscated equipment capable of producing 50 gallons of whisky a day.

The raid was the second this week in a drive against illegal distilleries by the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Treasury Department. Treasury officials last night said that they believed the Maryland still was operated by a Washington bootlegging syndicate. No arrests were made.

Treasury agents, accompanied by Chief Ralph Brown and Officer Richards of the Prince Georges County police, found the 100-gallon still and about 600 gallons of mash unattended. The still had been in operation for less than a week, police said, and when in full operation would have produced enough illicit whisky to defraud the Government out of between $300 and $400 a day.

Monday, Treasury agents and Washington police raided a still camouflaged as an auto repair shop at 637 L st. se., and found 21 50-gallon barrels of rye mash, a 75-gallon capacity still and 20 5-gallon tin cans.

Surprise Nazi Bombing Blasts 14 Allied Ships in Italian Port; Reds Link Dnieper Bridgeheads

Russians Now Control Stretch Of 250 Miles On West Bank

London (Thursday), Dec. 16 (AP).—The Russians have joined their Cherkasy and Kremenchug bridgeheads completing control of a 250-mile stretch of the west bank of the winding Dnieper River from Nikopol north to Cherkasy, Moscow announced today, while the Germans said two powerful Russian drives were underway to the north in White Russia—possibly the beginning of a winter offensive toward the Baltic Sea.

The Russians also advanced to within easy artillery range of the railway hub of Smela in the middle Dnieper fighting, capturing the railway town of Byelozere, 5 miles northeast of Smela.

New details of the violent battle 55 miles west of Kiev where the Germans were driving near the Teterev River south of Malin indicated the Russians had won a defensive battle in the last 24 hours. Several populated places were recaptured by Russians relying heavily upon concentrated pockets of artillery. Soviet airmen also played a major role in the battle, the Moscow bulletin said.

1400 Nazis Slain

Southward, in the Kirovograd area where the Russians reported improved positions, 1400 Germans were killed and 46 tanks wrecked as a result of fierce engagements.

The announcement that Russians in the Kremenchug and Cherkasy bridgeheads had "joined hands" said a 65-mile stretch of the west bank thus "was completely cleared" of Germans.

Actually, the Russians have now pushed the Germans back from a great portion of the stream's western bank. The Germans hold only stretches from the mouth of the river to Nikopol, from Cherkasy to south of Kiev and in White Russia from Vitebsk to Zhlobin.

New Drives Reported

From Berlin came reports of two new Soviet drives.

For the second day the Russians attacked with perhaps 60,000 men and three tank brigades in the area south of Nevel where the Red army was but 70 miles from the Latvian border, a Nazi broadcast said. The Germans admitted 16 waves of attacks in one sector and conceded some breaches made in their lines. These, they said, were "sealed off."

The second attack was in southern White Russia, where the Red army forces which captured Gomel

Record Offensive Promised by Reds

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—A Moscow broadcast to the Red army today declared "this winter will see a Soviet offensive on a larger scale than ever before."

"Winter is a most convenient time for Red army operation as the past two war winters have shown," it said. "It is the best time for outflanking movement, surprise raids, encirclement and annihilation of the enemy."

Reports From Two Heroes

Ex-Farm Boy, Army's Top Ace, Tells of Battles; Fleet Invited Fight at Truk, but Japs Declined

Saratoga Captain Tells How Force Defied Foe's Bastion

Daring the Japanese fleet based at Truk to come out and fight, an American task force has sailed far out into the Caroline Islands area without drawing any response from the enemy, the Navy Department disclosed yesterday.

Capt. John H. Cassady, commander of the 33,000-ton aircraft carrier Saratoga, which was a part of the task force, told at a press conference of the Navy's unsuccessful efforts to decoy the enemy's warships into action. He has just returned to Washington after participating in attacks on Rabaul and the American invasions of Bougainville and the Gilbert Islands.

"We were sent up on several guinea-pig runs near Truk to try to get the Japs to poke their noses out," Cassady said, "but they stayed in behind their nets. We went into areas where they normally run air searches, but I don't know whether we were picked up."

Cassady said that he believes that when the Americans get to Truk they will find that Japanese bastion even more strongly defended than Rabaul, the advance base on New Britain Island, which American planes have bombed into uselessness.

Planes of the Saratoga participated in two of these attacks, one on November 1 as part of the operations against Bougainville and the other ten days later when at least two Japanese warships were sunk, many others damaged, and from 60 to 65 Japanese planes destroyed.

As a result of these and other air attacks, Cassady said, the Japanese have had to withdraw their ships to Truk, about 800 miles north of Rabaul. He warned, however, that the Japanese still have several excellent air fields and probably many troops in the Rabaul area. He made plain that the Navy would like to take possession of Rabaul, remarking that it "would make an excellent advance fleet base for us."

The tall, lean carrier commander, himself a flier, talked enthusi-

CAPT. RICHARD I. BONG
Deprecates His Shooting

Victor in 21 Fights Says Jap Fliers Are Deteriorating

By James S. King

A 23-year-old Wisconsin farm boy who thinks his shooting is very bad told yesterday how he became the Army's "ace of aces" by destroying at least 21 Japanese planes in the Southwest Pacific.

The ace is Capt. Richard Ira Bong. The short, blond, chubby-looking flier from Poplar, Wis., met interviewers in the Pentagon Building, where he has been assigned to temporary duty before he returns to his squadron next month. Across his chest he wore ribbons for the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Air Medal with nine Oak Leaf Clusters and a Presidential citation presented to his fighter group.

The only flier in the American armed forces credited with more victories over the Japs in the air is Maj. Joe Foss of the Marine Corps. His score is 26.

Captain Bong won his victories in air battles over Milne Bay, Huon Gulf, Bismarck Sea, Oro Bay, Buna, Wewak, Lae, all on New Guinea, and in four missions against the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain.

Last August he got four Jap planes in one day.

"We were patrolling over ground troops near Salamau," he said. "We got a call over the radio that 30 Jap planes were approaching.

Officials Silent

A devastating "sneak attack" by large formations of German bombers administered very severe blows to Allied merchant shipping anchored in the east coast Italian harbor of Bari on the night of December 2, informed sources reported yesterday.

To date, no official announcement has been made of the Bari raid, but one American correspondent reported that it had occurred, with the comment that the city's defenses were "caught napping" by the suddenness of the attack.

A claim that four large cargo vessels were sunk and nine others hit already has been made by the Germans in a broadcast communique recorded by the Associated Press on December 5. It also was claimed that one medium sized warship was "very badly hit."

One source here stated that considerably more damage than the enemy boasted actually was inflicted.

Enemy's Communique

The text of the enemy communique on the Bari raid:

"During an attack launched by strong German bomber formations against the enemy supply base of Bari during the night of December 2, four commercial vessels totaling 31,000 tons, including one large tanker, were sunk, according to the latest figures to hand.

"Furthermore, nine freighters displacing a total of 45,000 tons as well as one medium size warship were very badly hit. Our own losses included only two planes."

The communique did not disclose the home base of the Nazi aircraft, but observers attached some significance to the fact that more than 300 American bombers and fighters pounded airfields in Greece—a few hundred miles away—yesterday.

The only American account of the Bari raid made no reference to sunk or damaged ships, but stated that a volunteer crew made use of an abandoned Italian tug and towed to safety a tanker laden with hundreds of thousands of gallons of high octane gasoline. It said the attack lasted an hour.

May Have Been Rockets

The account speculated on the possibility that Nazi radio-guided rockets or glider bombs had been used in view of the unexpected nature of the attack.

Unofficial accounts of the attack on Bari depicted the affair as comparable in some of its aspects to the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor which immobilized a large portion of the American battleship fleet.

The German broadcast claims seemed to indicate that little Allied air opposition was brought to bear, considering that the enemy boasted that it sank and damaged the vessels with a loss of only two aircraft.

Gen. Patton's Promotion Sidetracked

By Robert C. Albright

A Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee yesterday unanimously agreed to postpone "indefinitely" any action on the nomination of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton for a two-jump promotion to the permanent rank of major general.

This was disclosed last night by Senator Albert B. Chandler (Democrat) of Kentucky, chairman of the Military Affairs Subcommittee on Army nominations, following a personal poll of the five-man group.

The effect of the decision will be to deny Patton permanent advancement at this time. Action on the other 14 officers nominated en bloc with Patton for permanent brigadier or major general grades also will be delayed for some time, but Chandler predicted most of the nominees will be confirmed separately later.

He denied any knowledge of unconfirmed reports that the Army may decide to withdraw the entire permanent promotion list and resubmit individual nominees for advancement.

"The Army is free to use General Patton as it sees fit," said Senator Chandler. "He has his

First American Visit

U. S. Mission Discusses War, Economics With Arabian King

Cairo, Dec. 15 (AP).—An American military mission has completed successful introductory talks with one of the Arab world's most renowned warriors, King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, it was announced today, raising speculation as to a possible expansion of military and supply transportation activities in the Middle East.

The mission, which was the first from the United States ever to visit the fabulous Arabian kingdom, which can be entered only by invitation, talked for three days with the tall, powerfuly-built king on economic and military matters.

Saudi Arabia, comprising the greater part of the Arabian Peninsula, is rich in oil. Royalties from concessions have fattened King Ibn Saud's treasury.

Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, American Middle East commander, headed the mission, which left behind four military experts on economics, public health, radio transmission and military affairs.

Ibn Saud singled out Major General Royce for unusual honors at an Arabian Nights banquet last Sunday. The King took Royce up a ramp outside the palace to a banquet room flooded by a full moon. Before, only the King used the ramp which was built because of the King's battle-shattered knee.

At a table set for 50 guests, the Arabian King offered the Americans a feast of 10 whole sheep, other meats and huge plates of vegetables. He did not insist that they eat what he considered the greatest delicacy—sheep's eyes.

The King presented Royce with Arabian costumes, a gold and silver sword and a wrist watch. Royce's gift to the King was valuable radio equipment.

Royce's visit underscored the little-emphasized Arabic political conferences in Cairo and Teheran. Ibn Saud notably took occasion during the Mecca pilgrimage to salute for the first time the growing idea of a pan-Arabic federation.

It was disclosed that one suggestion made by Royce and Ibn Saud during an informal conversation was that Saudi Arabia send students to the United States to study engineering and medicine.

Seabee Training in U. S. Brings Miracles on the Battlefronts

By Drew Pearson

WHEN UNITED STATES MARINES stormed ashore on the Gilbert Islands, they found what the Japs did not find two years before when they raided Wake and Guam just after Pearl Harbor—namely, tremendous concrete block-houses, which not even big guns could knock out.

Today, however, if the Japs should counterattack some of the islands we have taken from them, they would find miracles of construction. These miracles have been performed by a branch of the Navy which was thrown together only after Pearl Harbor and which this month celebrates its second anniversary—the branch known as the Seabees.

Official name of the Seabees is "C. B.'s" or "Construction Battalions." Two years ago, they did not exist. And it was the killing and capture of civilian construction workers on Wake, Guam and at Cavite which emphasized the Navy's need of enlisting construction men and forming them into fighting engineer battalions.

There are 59 construction trades enrolled in the Seabees—so wide a range that their men can operate bulldozers, install water systems, telephones, electric light plants, build cantonments, or even repair ships.

Miracle Out of Mud

One important factor behind the meteoric development of the Seabees in two short years is the tough, thorough-going training they get before being shipped overseas. This takes place at three United States camps—one at Davisville, R. I., under Capt. Fred F. Rogers; one at Camp Peary, Va., under Capt. J. G. Ware; one at a location which must remain a secret.

These camps in themselves have been near miracles of construction. When Captain Ware turned up near Williamsburg, Va., in September, 1942, to command his new Seabee camp, he found nothing but 30 square miles of wilderness and swampland so desolate that, during the building of the camp the skeletons of several Negroes were found in the swamps.

Chief residents of the district were Negro squatters. There was also a large hog farm. This was what gave Captain Ware the idea of raising hogs to provide extra

U. S. Bombers Drop Record Load on New Britain Base

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters (Thursday), Dec. 16 (AP).—American heavy and medium bombers ripped Arawe, New Britain, Tuesday with the heaviest bomb load ever carried on a single mission by Southwest Pacific air forces.

The bombers, supported by attack planes and numbering more than 100 in all, loosed 356 tons of explosives on the Japanese barge base which is about midway between Cape Gloucester at the western tip of the island and Gasmata on the south central coast, enemy supply center which was subjected to a 248-ton attack Sunday.

Rabaul, on northeastern New Britain, had held the record for bomb punishment, with 350 tons dropped there last October 12.

In addition to bombs, Arawe was sprayed with more than 174,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition. None of our planes was lost.

Barges, installations, personnel, stores, and communications were believed destroyed or "devastated."

This great aerial blow overshadowed the ground fighting. Patrol activity was reported in the Ramu Valley, above Huon Peninsula on New Guinea, where the Australians are heading for the Japanese base at Madang on the coast, and at Empress Augusta Bay, the American Marine and Army front on Bougainville Island in the Solomons.

An enemy cruiser caught off Kavieng, New Ireland, by American Naval Catalina bombers at night received two 1000-pound bomb hits on the stern.

Allied Planes Aid

Nazi Column Driven Back, Tito Claims

Canadian and Indian Troops Advance; Prisoners Taken

By Wes Gallagher

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—Supported by an Allied air arm striking with enormously increased force from Greece to western Yugoslavia, the Yugoslav Partisan army under Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) broke and turned back one wing of the German offensive in Bosnia today and regained the island of Uljan in the sheltered inner approaches to the enemy's major port of Fiume.

Tito's communique warmly saluted the Allied air action as having helped in driving the Nazis from Uljan and in having aided in "heavily" defeating German forces occupying the nearby coastal city of Zara. He used the term "thanks to Allied air forces."

The most significant fighting was in eastern Bosnia where a minimum of six German divisions has been on the attack for days in four separate offensive thrusts. Here one German column was thrown back and the town of Kladanj was regained by Moslem troops who went over to Tito's command in a steady recruitment which is building his forces well beyond the 200,000 mark.

Ousted from the island of Uljan—innermost of a chain of islands lying just off the Adriatic coast between Split and Fiume—the Germans claimed they had beaten off a sea-borne Allied thrust against the island of Pag just north of Uljan.

Canadian and Indian troops of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army have carved out a firm five-mile-wide bridgehead north of the Moro River on the Italian Adriatic coast, it was announced today, while the Fifth Army front, relatively quiet militarily, was marked by complaints by Nazi prisoners that they were forced to fight against "tough wild men from Texas."

Veteran Indian troops, fighting forward a few miles inland from the Adriatic, captured the village of Caldari, six miles from Ortonia, against fierce German resistance and seized 200 prisoners. This merged the Moro bridgehead forced by the Indians several days ago with that won by the Canadians along the coast, making a solid breach in the enemy's defenses five miles wide and from one to three miles deep.

It was disclosed that the aggressive Canadians, who have been locked in desperate fighting around the town of San Leonardo, two and a half miles north of the Moro, for six days, staged a night raid on the village of Berrati in which they captured nearly 150 German prisoners, including the commanding officer of the 361st Armored Grenadier Division. The Canadians retired after the raid, taking all equipment of value with them.

Berrati is about two miles south of Ortona, coastal anchor of the Nazis' present defense line, upon which the Canadians have been slowly but steadily encroaching. Ortona must be taken before Montgomery can proceed with his "back-door" advance on Rome.

The weather improved across the front, but activity along the Fifth Army sector still was confined to patrol clashes. It was a Nazi prisoner seized in one of these "feeler" stabs by Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's troops who winced at the mention of Texas.

During questioning, he declared that Germans fighting in the St. Maggiore sector near Mignano were faced by "tough wild men from Texas with a knowledge of field craft," and said his feelings were shared by his comrades.

Among Clark's divisions is the 36th, composed largely of Texans, which was the first American division to hit the beaches at Salerno.

Plant Chlorophyll Found to Speed Healing of Wounds

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Experiments showing that chlorophyll, the mysterious green coloring matter of leaves and plants, speeds the healing of wounds and burns is announced in the current issue of the American Journal of Surgery.

The tests were made by Drs. Lawrence W. Smith and Alfred E. Livingston of Temple University School of Medicine, Philadelphia. They used the chlorophyll on about 450 wounds and burns of animals, and also on a few human beings.

On the animals there was a 24.9 per cent speed up in time of healing among 67.9 per cent of the cases. The human statistics were not given but the report made a definite recommendation for wide human use.

Bulgar Army Circles Reported Ready to Help Uprising

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—Army support of demands in Sofia for a new regency as well as a new government for Bulgaria were reported today in neutral dispatches.

A soldier—Col. Damian Veltchev, who is said to be pro-Allied and once was involved in attempts to overthrow the government in 1923 and again in 1934—was mentioned in reports from the Balkans as the probable successor to Premier Dobri Bojilov if Bulgaria's government should be reorganized.

Reports reaching London from Bulgaria via Sweden said Bojilov hoped to revamp his cabinet within the next 10 days to satisfy his opponents.

But there was reported dissatisfaction within the army with both the regency—which is regarded as strongly pro-German—and Bojilov's government.

The British Foreign Office disclaimed any knowledge of peace feelers as reported in a Cairo dispatch which said the Bulgarians had officially communicated with Washington and London through Moscow, only to be rebuffed with Allied insistence of unconditional surrender.

The foreign office said any peace proposal by the Bulgars which included the retention of any territory gained during the present conflict would not have a ghost of a chance.

Even as Germany was reported moving air-borne troops to hold Bulgaria in line, the Berlin radio declared in a broadcast intended to stiffen the home front that "Bulgaria will not quit."

Finnish "Feelers"

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Finnish "discussed peace proposals" in a broadcast beamed to the Soviet Union, according to a BBC broadcast recorded today by CBS.

The broadcast quoted the Finnish "President of the Foreign Affairs Commission" as saying:

"Our country must make every effort to have peace as quickly as possible. Certain great powers have often declared that peace would not come before a long time. But if this is the case, a small country forced to fight a numerically superior enemy will find itself in a situation very different from that of a nation who has not awaited the end of the war to make peace and whose frontiers have been defended by all armed forces."

Plane Crashes Kill 2 Officers Of D. C. Area

Two Washington area men have been killed in plane crashes while serving with the armed forces in the United States it was learned here last night.

Lieut. George A. Hileman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hileman, 2214 Shannon pl. se., was killed yesterday in a crash near the Ardmore, Okla., Army Air Base, and news of the death of Lieut. Samuel M. McNutt, Tuesday night, in a crash at the Marine Base, Santa Ana, Calif., was received yesterday by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Perry F. Seward, with whom he made his home at 8100 Custer rd., Bethesda.

Lieutenant Hileman, 20, who was a navigator on a B-17 Flying Fortress, was one of 11 men killed in the crash. A brother, Staff Sergt. Floyd N. Hileman, tail gunner on a Fortress, has been reported missing in action in the Mediterranean combat zone since October 14.

Born in Avonmore, Pa., Lieutenant Hileman lived in West Virginia and Ohio before moving to Washington three years ago. He graduated from the Anacostia High School in June, 1941, and was employed as a photographer with the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department before enlisting in the Army as an aviation cadet in February. Graduated as a navigator from Selman Field at Monroe, La., he received his wings October 16 and had been stationed at Ardmore for three weeks.

Lieut. McNutt, 21, a native of Durham, N. C., lived in Lynchburg, Va., before moving to Washington to work for the Quartermaster Corps. At the time he enlisted in the Navy in August, 1942, he was a sophomore at Maryland University. He was commissioned in the Marine Corps following training as an air cadet at Pensacola, Fla., and had been at the Santa Anna Field since September.

Eden Tells Of Modern 'Pimpernel'

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—New light was shed today on the mysterious figure of Brig. Fitzroy Hew Royle MacLean, leader of a British military mission in Yugoslavia whose exploits in guerilla warfare in the Balkans led the Germans to dub him "Terrible Major Jones."

Identified for the first time by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in Commons yesterday, MacLean for several months has been sharing Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito's) will-o'-the-wisp existence in the Yugoslav mountains harassing the Germans. He has helped Tito finally compel the Nazis to throw in a full-size army of about 200,000 troops, along the shores of the Adriatic.

MacLean, like the hero of the novel "Scarlet Pimpernel," is described as outwardly languid and casual, affecting the bored drooping mannerism of a Mayfair dilettante, but inwardly burning with a zest for danger and adventure.

A bachelor, he is a descendant of the fighting MacLeans of Ardgour.

The first parachutist member of Commons, he led a secret column which struck 500 miles behind Marshal Rommel's lines in the North Africa desert to raid a Nazi airbase at Bengasi in 1942.

Then followed months of silence. It was broken by disclosure that MacLean along with picked men had landed by parachute in the heart of Yugoslavia to aid and advise the elusive Tito. He is 6 feet tall and pictured as having a deep relish for battling Germans at close quarters.

were reported to have begun a thrust with 100,000 infantrymen and two tank brigades toward the rail junction of Zhlobin, 10 miles west of advanced Russian positions.

The Germans claimed a "full defense success" on the first day of this drive.

On these German reports the Russians maintained silence—their customary procedure at the beginning of any drive.

Germans admitted that a successful Soviet push to the Baltic would influence their position in Finland, for it would give the Soviets a stronger position on the Baltic Sea. Even supply lines to Norway might be endangered.

Moscow radio noted an increase in Soviet aerial activity at Leningrad, where Red bombers soared out to wreck German ammunition dumps, artillery batteries and fortifications.

Lieutenant Friedrich Missing in Action

Lieut. Charles A. Friedrich, jr., USAAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Friedrich, former Silver Spring residents, now of Houston, Tex., has been reported missing in action, friends disclosed yesterday.

A graduate of Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Md., Lieutenant Friedrich attended Washington College in Chestertown, Md., before entering the service. The War Department notified the flier's parents that Lieutenant Friedrich has been missing since November 13.

New 15th On Job

U. S. Smashes 3 Airbases At Athens

By Edward Kennedy

Algiers, Dec. 15 (AP).—More than 300 Flying Fortresses, Liberators and escorting Lightnings of the powerful new American Fifteenth Strategic Air Force opened the winter bombing offensive from Mediterranean bases yesterday with smashing attacks on three big Nazi military airdromes in the outskirts of Athens and the harbor of Piraeus, gateway to the Greek capital.

It was the greatest aerial blow yet struck at Hitler's Balkan holdings and marked fulfillment of last Sunday's promise by Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of United States Air Forces, that "terrible blows" would be launched from this area at Germany and her satellites.

(Dispatches did not disclose whether the bombers in Tuesday's raid took off from their old North African bases or from fields newly prepared for them in southern Italy.)

Three Air Bases Blasted

Returning fliers said heavy damage was inflicted on Kalamaki, Tatoi and Elevsis airfields and on merchant shipping in Piraeus harbor. All four targets are within 10 miles of Athens and within the vital area from which the Germans must support their grip on the Aegean Islands.

The big bombers directed their heaviest smash at Kalamki airfield. Other formations hit the two other airfields and Piraeus Harbor in what Col. K. K. Compton of St. Joseph, Mo., called "a perfectly coordinated blitz." He led a force of Liberators on the 200th mission flown by the group he commands.

About 35 German fighters zoomed up to challenge the raiders and 12 were destroyed by bomber gunners and the Lightnings. One Fortress was lost on the mission. Several Yugoslav pilots were flying Lightnings, but they failed to get into a fight.

Chief Nazi Port Hit

Elevsis, Kalamaki and Tatoi fields have been the Nazis' principal mainland air bases in the Aegean area, while Piraeus has been their chief port for supplying the islands by sea.

Clouds prevented full observation of the attack on Piraeus, but an official release said "many small vessels were believed to have been hit."

The coordinated attacks by waves of bombers constituted the same type of knockout tactics used by the German air force during the invasion of Greece in 1941, when British planes stationed at the same airdromes around Athens virtually were wiped out.

Piraeus harbor was practically destroyed on the first day of the German invasion of Greece, when a Nazi bomber hit a British ship loaded with TNT in the harbor and the explosion sank 22 ships and wrecked the harbor installations.

Senate Group Sidetracks General Patton's Promotion

three stars (lieutenant general) and the War Department may assign him to any command to which, in their judgment, he is best fitted. That is their responsibility and not a matter in which the Senate should interfere, in my opinion.

"But it is for the Senate to decide whether General Patton should be given two permanent promotions at this time on his record. The subcommittee has his record as transmitted from Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to the Secretary of War to the committee.

"In one of the general's three encounters with servicemen, the War Department refers to his conduct as 'reprehensible' and in another, as 'indefensible.' I do not think the subcommittee would be justified in recommending two promotions on those grounds."

Senator Chandler stressed that the subcommittee was not passing on the "military effectiveness" of the Seventh Army commander. Secretary of War Stimson advised the full committee last week of General Eisenhower's conviction that the three encounters had not affected Patton's standing "as a tactical leader, one who successfully concluded, in record time, a complicated and important military campaign, and one whom his officers and men would again be willing to follow into battle."

Failure of the subcommittee to pass now on a two-step promotion will not affect in any way General Patton's availability for any command General Eisenhower chooses to give him, Chandler emphasized.

Meanwhile it was learned that in the case of at least one other officer on the permanent promotion list—Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell—members of the subcommittee may insist on a hearing. Opposition to Somervell on the committee antedated the Patton incidents, and spread since discredited reports that Somervell would succeed Gen. George C. Marshall as chief of staff. The committee since has received assurances that Somervell will get a permanent supply assignment, but some members want to call him as a witness.

Of the 15 officers recommended for permanent general's grades, 5 do not have the 28 years of service now required, and action on these nominations is awaiting final passage of legislation liberalizing the service requirement.

It has been Senate custom to confirm Army promotion lists en bloc. It was indicated that the precedent will be broken largely as a result of the Patton incident, and recommendations for promotion of individual officers will be submitted by the committee to the Senate for confirmation one at a time. There is some sentiment in the committee for suspension of all permanent promotions, leaving the Army to function on a temporary advancement basis for the war's duration.

In this connection, Senator Wallgren (Democrat), Washington, member of the Military Affair Committee, told the Associated Press last night that he has drafted legislation to prohibit further promotions in permanent Army rank of general officers.

"We don't know how large this Army is going to be," Walgren said. "I think it is about time for the Military Committee to call a halt to these promotions which have been coming along at an excessive rate for the last few months."

El Alamein Cost Placed At 40 Million

London, Dec. 5.—A single night's antiaircraft barrage in London cost 100,000 pounds ($400,000) Sir Harold Mackintosh, chairman of the British National Savings Committee, said in a speech here today.

Outlining war savings targets which various communities might adopt, Sir Harold disclosed that the seven-day battle of El Alamein cost 40 million dollars, the Eighth Army cost $1,200,000 a day to support, clothing for an ATS girl (British for WAC), $12.17, dummy eggs for the army pigeon service, 1 2-3 cents.

Three Male Dogs Declared 4-Fs, But Susie Passes

It's a war gone feminine—Susie made the Army, but three male penal institution bloodhounds which volunteered have been sent home as 4-F's, according to Ray Huff, director of the institutions. The unwanted males are X-ray, Sandy and Liver.

The Penal Institutions have a certificate expressing appreciation from the Office of the Quartermaster General "for your patriotic action in donating your dog Susie for use in connection with the armed forces of the United States."

Huff says the certificate will be framed and hung in the kennels for the grandchildren of Susie, X-ray, Sandy, Liver and all others to see.

Big Push Will Take All Allied Resources, He Tells Commons

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden gave a broad hint today that the grand assault on the Continent is "very near" and asserted that the Allies would throw everything they had into it.

"Military plans which we laid down at Teheran call for all our Allied resources in every respect," he declared. "There will be no margin, and it is going to take all our energies to fulfill the demands which will be made upon us in the very near future."

Speaking in Commons' two-day war debate, Eden said that no secret agreements or treaties were made at the Teheran and Cairo conferences and declared "our Russian Allies attach the greatest importance" to American and British long-range bombing of Hitler's Europe.

Underscores Unity

Underscoring again the unity of Britain, the United States and Russia, Eden brought cheers as he declared, "before the conferences I was not sure there was a common foundation on which we, the United States and Russia could work. Now I am sure there is."

He stressed that the main results of the Teheran and Cairo conferences—"particularly the Teheran conference" where Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt were believed to have reassured Premier Marshal Stalin by setting the zero hour for the invasion of western Europe—were military.

To critics of the Allied Mediterranean strategy, he declared in reference to Italy:

"We have never said King Vittorio Emanuele and Marshal Pietro Badoglio are going to stay. But when a change comes it will be better to have a change when we are certain the new elements truly represent the views of the Italian people. I doubt whether we could do that at the present moment."

Tells of Aid to Tito

Eden disclosed that "pretty regular supplies" had been sent the Yugoslav Partisans since May.

He paid tribute to American delivery of war supplies to China as a "remarkable unique performance" and said the figures of United States shipments were rising month by month.

In an opposition speech, the outspoken Laborite Aneurin Bevan assailed the government's military operations as "one blunder after another."

Bevan, a constant critic of Churchill, said Allied strategy had permitted the Germans to weather their greatest crisis "since Stalingrad" in Russia and to transfer troops from Italy to the eastern front.

Charges "Timidity"

He upbraided the "timidity" with which British operations were carried out, and added

"The Allied high command has approached the problem of attacking Italy like an old man approaching a young bride: Fascinated, sluggish and apprehensive."

Bevan, however, had high praise for the bravery of American and British troops slowly driving toward Rome.

He charged that British forces were too widely dispersed to be effective and criticized the strategy "which placed American and British troops in Italy so that they had to traverse the whole peninsula during autumn and winter."

There were 10 of us in P-38's. We met them head on, taking shots as we flew past, then taking more shots every time we could get them in our sights. We got 10 of them and the rest left. We lost none. Capt. James Watkins of Crystal Springs, Miss., got four, I got four and Capt. Gerald Johnson of Eugene, Oreg., got two."

The last engagement in which Bong scored was on November 5 when his squadron set out to escort bombers attacking Rabaul. "We always got a fight there," he said. "But this time the bombers hadn't been molested when we found 15 old Zeros. They were easy pickings. The first one didn't even see me before I got him. The second took about three-fourths of my ammunition before I got him."

"The Jap pilots," Bong continued, either aren't as good as they used to be or we're getting better. I think they aren't as good. They've lost many of their best pilots and their training isn't as good as ours. But there's nothing really wrong with their planes."

Reared on Grain Farm

Bong grew up on his father's grain farm at Poplar, the eldest of eight children. He was a student at Superior State Teachers College at Superior, Wis., until 1941 when he entered the Army Air Forces. He trained at airfields in California and Arizona and arrived in New Guinea in November, 1942.

Bong said his interest in flying began in 1928 when he stood on his father's farm and watched the planes taking mail to President Coolidge who was summering in Brule, Wis.

"I don't know just how old I was then but I was old enough to ride a bike," he said. "I remember that they made me get off the road when President Coolidge's convoy came by. Later I drove tractors on the farm but that wasn't as good as flying. I don't know what I'm going to do when the war is over but I know I'm not going to give up flying."

on Huon Peninsula, on islands off the New Guinea coast and in the Solomons.

Admiral William F. Halsey's headquarters in the Solomons said Japanese airfields on Bougainville have been bombed-out to such an extent that American bombers, now monopolizing the air, are concentrating on supplies and ground defenses. Halsey's spokesman said the net result was "continued improvement of our position" on Bougainville, the last big Japanese Solomons base barring the frontal approach to Rabaul.

astically of the exploits of the Saratoga, which the crew now calls "the Sara-cobra."

In a little more than a month the Saratoga covered 12,500 miles in the southwest and central Pacific and was at its base only twice, once for 24 hours and again for 46 hours. Her score against the enemy was 25 Japanese planes shot down in combat, 23 planes probably destroyed and 24 destroyed on the ground; two warships sunk, 12 warships, mostly destroyers, damaged; and 4 Japanese airfields put out of commission.

Cassady said he was especially proud of the morale of his men. He said that he had been curious since the Navy had been taking draftees to see how the men would react in battle, but that every time he told them of impending action they "cheered like it was an Army-Navy game."

During the American invasion of the Gilbert Islands, the Saratoga's first mission was to raid Japanese airfields at Nauru to prevent interference with the landings at Tarawa, 400 miles to the east. One moonlight blow and three daylight attacks did the job.

The Saratoga then went to Tarawa where for a week its planes gave fighter protection to the Marine landing force and engaged in antisubmarine patrol.

At Tarawa Rear Admiral Henry M. Mullinix, a fellow townsman of Cassady's in Spencer, Ind., lost his life while commanding a carrier task force.

the AFL and the CIO at the same time so as to be sure of being on the winning side in a National Labor Relations Board election.

After citing the fact that De Lorenzo admitted to falsifying his Civil Service application for a job as a member of the labor panel of the National War Labor Board, the subcommittee called attention to the fact that the board has not terminated his employment, even though the facts were publicly revealed weeks ago.

Other important recommendations included:

1. Selective Service officials should take immediate steps to review the deferments of Brewster employes, and should cancel all deferments of workers not engaged in productive activities. Selective Service should also avoid the granting of occupational deferments where such deferments result in the layoff of female employes or of male workers not subject to induction in the armed forces. Selective Service should not grant occupational deferments in plants engaged in production for the Navy, unless the request for deferment is certified by an authorized representative of the Navy.

Union Contract Change Urged

2. The Navy and the Kaiser management are advised to change their contract with De Lorenzo's union so "as to eliminate the restrictive power of the union over Brewster so that nothing shall interfere with production."

3. The Navy's cost inspectors and the Comptroller General should make certain that the wages of nonproductive employes, such as shop committeemen and shop stewards, to an extent beyond that in which their employment assists in the production of Navy planes, are not allocated to the Government as a cost of production under Brewster's cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contracts.

(In their findings the committee asserted that the cost of such nonproductive employes in the first nine months of 1943 totaled $544,122.75, while their principal function "appeared to be the stirring up of trivial dissatisfactions." The second part of this recommendation referred to the fact that although the union contract required that employes be paid for a full eight-hour day and two houors overtime at time and a half, testimony showed only one out of every three man-hours was utilized in productive activity. It cited a War Manpower Commission report on wasted manpower at Brewster, on an inadequate system of material control and "lackadaisical work habits.")

4. Prompt steps should be taken by the War Manpower Commission and the United States Employment Service to release surplus employes at Brewster and put an end to hoarding of manpower.

5. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Criminal Division of the Justice Department and the Office of Naval Intelligence are requested to take action on evidence indicating the commission of sabotage, fraud and other crimnial offenses.

Not only at Brewster but in all plants producing for the Navy, the department should clarify the guard system by placing guards under the full and exclusive control of the Navy. (At Brewster guards owe three allegiances: they are members of the union; they are paid by the management; but they are sworn in by the Navy as Coast Guard Reserve Temporary.)

7. The Navy and the Comptroller General should examine carefully the allowance of excessive or duplicated executive salaries at Brewster.

Three Presidents Formerly

(Kaiser and his son, Henry J. Kaiser, jr., are serving without pay at the request of the Navy Department. The report refers here to the fact that James Work, first president; George F. Chapline, and Ralph M. Singer, succeeding presidents, were all on the payroll at the same time.)

8. The Navy and the Comptroller General should take care that the United States Government does not bear the burden of paying damages to Brewster in connection with cancellation of its British contracts.

The Navy should see to it while it still has Brewster contracts that control of Brewster will not revert to Work, A. J. and I. J. Miranda, and F. William Zelcer. The latter are munitions dealers whose activities are described in the historical summary in the report.

Both the Navy Department and management receive a lighter share of criticism, although Frederick J. Riebel, jr., Kaiser's immediate predecessor was referred to as a "bombastic personality," who lost the respect of the workers by pitching quarters with them and insisting on being called "Skippy."

The report was signed by Chairman Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia and all members of his subcommittee except Representative Harris (Democrat) of Virginia who is ill. Vinson referred to the splendid work of the subcommittee and staff yesterday. Committee counsel is Robert E. Kline, jr., with Richard H. Wels and William C. Lewis, jr., as assistant counsel.

meat for the Seabees, and this led to reports that he was operating the farm for his own benefit. Actually, all of the proceeds from the hog farm went to the Ship's Service Fund to benefit the Seabees.

THOUGH IN ITS EARLY stages Camp Peary was described by the Navy as "hell's worst mudhole," today Captain Ware has transformed it into a neat orderly stretch of "hutments" (soldiers' barracks with rounded roofs, stretching as far as the eye can see. Many thousand men are now located there, all training for construction work in the Pacific, Burma or the Western Front.

Morale, always difficult in any new organization, is now excellent. The training the Seabees get in the swamps of Virginia under a retired naval captain called back to active duty is one big reason for the feats of heroism and accomplishment in the southwest Pacific. In fact, the swampy semijungle conditions in that part of Virginia have helped materially in training for jungle warfare abroad.

A good many of the men qualify for petty officer ratings with base pay at $78 to $126 a month. If they stayed at home in the relative safety of a war plant they would make two to three times that much. However, the Seabees have had so many recruits that the organization has reached its authorized strength and recruitment is now closed.

Out in the Solomon Islands is a railroad, not a long one, but with a powerful name—"Guadalcanal, Bougainville and Tokyo Railroad." That expresses the spirit of the Seabees, some of whom built it and who believe it is headed in the right direction—straight toward the heart of Japan.

Nazi Air Output Held Less Than 1900 a Month

London (Thursday), Dec. 16 (AP). The day and night bombing of German industry is steadily choking the production of warplanes in the Reich, with the output of fighter planes—the best weapon against aerial attack—falling below 650 monthly, it was reliably reported here today.

It has been learned that the Nazi aircraft industry, by a most strenuous effort, was able to turn out only 1250 bombers and 650 fighters in August, and the same numbers in September.

With the results of the summer bombing campaign now catching up with industry there is no doubt that production fell even lower in October and November—when it was needed most.

The Nazis' production goal once was 2600 planes of all types per month, but this goal was achieved only in July, 1942, when, it was reported, the Nazis turned out 1300 bombers, 1100 fighters and 200 aircraft of miscellaneous types.

A year later, the production figure was down to 850 bombers and 550 fighters. To all monthly figures, however, must be added the number of planes repaired for fighting service. These are estimated to be about 50 per cent of the new production.

The Germans are believed now to have 2400 fighters in service on all fronts.

U. S. Mission Has 3-Day Talk With King of Arabia

Royce's staff discovered.

"They are keenly interested in our planes," he added. "They had heard about the B-29 (new American superbomber) and wanted to know if it was true that it was so big, how many people it would carry and how fast it would go."

Ibn Saud declined Royce's invitation that he go on his first plane ride, but said his brother would be glad to go. Royce took four Arabians on a flight before leaving.

The mission left behind in Jidda to continue consultations is headed by Col. Alton W. Howard. It includes Maj. Joseph Waldman, Medical Corps specialist who treated the King's eyes.

Printers Defeat Proposal to Rejoin AFL by 1225 Votes

Indianapolis, Dec. 15 (AP).—Tabulation of the recent referendum held by the International Typographical Union on reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor shows the proposal defeated by 1225 votes, it was announced today.

The vote was 23,366 for and 24,591 opposed.

The union voted an increase of 10 cents in the per capita tax for the upkeep of the Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, Colo.

A proposal to restore publication of the Typographical Journal also was accepted.

Rail Strike Voted Dec. 30 By 5 Unions

that the board directed the carriers to make no change in working conditions in conformity with the Railway Labor Act. He said the nonoperating unions had notified the board of a dispute with the carriers over a proposed change in working conditions, leaving the agency no choice but to block the change, pending an effort to settle the dispute.

Had the sliding scale gone into effect, the united front of management and labor that has weighed heavily with Congress would have been destroyed, jeopardizing the resolution. Railway management subsequently reaffirmed its support of the resolution, however.

What procedure the Mediation Board plans to follow in the operating case will not be determined until after the Chicago conference, Leiserson said, but observers pointed out that the strike action created an unusual situation since it is being taken after the normal proceedings of the Railway Labor Act have run their course—and after a wage determination has been made.

Union Chiefs' Stand

Declaring they were "thoroughly aware" of a strike's "immediate effects," the brotherhood presidents contended "in the long run" such action "will redound both to the military success of the war and the present and postwar welfare of the common people of this Nation."

The presidents are A. F. Whitney of the Trainmen, D. B. Robertson of the Firemen and Enginemen, Alvanley Johnston of the Locomotive Engineers, H. F. Fraser of the Railway Conductors and T. C. Cashen of the Switchmen.

"It is a strike against inflation for the privileged few and deflation for the many," they asserted in a joint statement, adding that the railroad workers "do not believe that swollen railroad earnings, larcenous profiteering, soaring prices and depressed real wages are necessities of the war effort.

"They inhere in the nature of things only when Congress passes bad laws and administrators interpret good ones wrongly and execute them badly. All the frantic and cheap appeals to patriotism issued by the Offices of War Mobilization and War Stabilization cannot obscure this issue. If there is any lack of patriotism in this country, the public may look for it, not among the warworkers in industry and transportation, but in Washington and in the swivel chair propagandists of the Government itself."

D. C. Grand Jury to Probe Liquor

between the big four for the production or distribution of liquor.

7. Current methods of advertising and sales promotion.

8. The amount of stocks of wines, liquors and beers these producers now have in their warehouses.

The four distillers were named by Senator Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana during hearings of his special Senate committee which investigated the liquor situation.

The committee is to continue its hearings today with testimony of State officials of New Jersey, where sales are on the open market, and Ohio, which has a State monopoly system.

The Senate probe was directed largely at the reasons behind the whisky shortage. Out of it already have come suggestions that the Federal tax on bonded whisky in storehouses be applied when the product is four years old. Now the whisky is tax exempt for eight years. The change in the law, it was said, would free a considerable quantity of whisky in storage and at the same time yield a huge sum in Federal revenue.

ed out—not in excess of the total for December 1942 of 67 during the entire month when there was no epidemic.

Four deaths have been attributed to influenza on vital statistics records this year, Dr. Ruhland said, but insisted that influenza itself is not a cause of death. He said it is the pneumonia complications which are fatal.

Over the Nation more than a million sufferers of respiratory ailments were reported, absenteeism from schools, offices, and war plants continued to mount, but deaths were few.

Redeemed War Bonds Reach a New High

Redemption of war bonds has leaped to a new high this month, presumably because of the holders' needs to raise money for income tax purposes and for Christmas shopping.

The amount of bonds cashed in between December 1 and 13 was 26 per cent of the amount purchased during the same period.

Unit Asks Rise in Rail Equipment

Warning that "a break down, or even a diminution in transportation service" would have "incalculable repercussions on our war effort" the Senate Truman Committee demanded yesterday increased production of railroad, truck, barge and airline equipment.

With the railroad industry's transportation burden growing constantly, its equipment deteriorating and its manpower problem acute, the committee declared, "it is folly to assume that there is no limit to the strain it can withstand."

The committee, headed by Senator Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, blamed past "confusion" among Government agencies for delaying construction of railroad equipment, and said Army, Navy, lend-lease and other demands have retarded replacements of essential civilian trucks and parts.

Senate Group Deadlocked On Subsidies

By Christine Sadler

After a 90-minute session marked by discussion of a compromise proposed by Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, members of the Senate Banking Committee yesterday found themselves in deadlocked disagreement on the food subsidy question.

Differences on how to settle the issue were so marked, balloting was not attempted. Another meeting will be held this morning, but Majority Leader Barkley declared his hopes for agreement on a bill that would retain at least part of the subsidy program were "not substantial."

Taft, meantime, filed his proposed compromise in the Senate. It contained these major provisions:

1. The war food administrator could fix such support prices to farmers as he deemed necessary to production. Retail prices on products direct from the farm could not be set lower than the support, but commodities processed from farm products could be stabilized to the consumer by payments to the processor or distributor.

2. No support price could be announced for beef cattle or calves "or the products thereof" and no subsidy could be paid on these products.

3. Subsidies would be limited to $600,000,000 annually, as against the present rate of $1,100,000,000, and the rate of $1,500,000,000 Price Administrator Chester Bowles has declared necessary for 1944.

4. Subsidies for milk would have to be paid by the support price system, WFA guaranteeing farmers their full price from the distributor. Payments could be made to distributors to lower the retail price to consumers.

Taft declared the net result of his compromise would be to eliminate the present 200 million dollars subsidy on beef and the 200 million dollars milk subsidy in the form of dairy feed payments to producers. "The butter rollback also would be eliminated," he pointed out, "but the same purpose could be accomplished through a support price."

"Milk might go up a cent a quart and beef might go up, but generally speaking other prices would be held stable and the effect on the cost of living would be negligible," he said.

The Taft proposal would be written into the Bankhead bill now before the committee as an amendment. Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama insisted the original measure—ending most subsidies on December 31—would receive Senate approval.

Both Bowles and War Food Administrator Marvin Jones have indicated their opposition to the compromise, Taft said.

"It would appear the Administration is opposed to any reduction in the present program," he said, "and the so-called farm bloc is against it because they apparently want to force a Senate vote on the subsidy and force the President to veto the bill."

Butter Price to Go Up In Some Small Stores

The Office of Price Administration yesterday revised its regulations controlling the price of butter in small independent stores and said the change will increase the retail price 1 cent and possibly 2 in many of these stores.

The revision, effective December 20, allows a special jobber mark-up of 2½ cents a pound for deliveries of 32 pounds or less to independent stores doing a gross annual business of less than $50,000 a year. Whether the boost at retail will be 1 or 2 cents will depend on the geographical relationship of the store to the creamery supplying its butter.

Trees for Yule In Good Supply

A miniature forest of Christmas trees began forming yesterday at 5th st. and Florida ave. ne., as enough carloads arrived to assure adequate supplies for next week's expected demand.

Buying was light, but dealers expect the annual rush to begin this weekend.

Spruce, balsam, box pines, cedars and firs—in size from 2-foot "table models" to 10-foot mammoths—are to arrive each day. Prices range from 50 cents to $10.

Little mistletoe or holly is available, and prices will be twice as high as last year, marketmen predict.

Dinner Is Canceled

The American Camping Association yesterday announced that the dinner to have been held tonight in Friendship House has been canceled because of the illness of many members.

Aviation Show Offers Guides For Students

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has made arrangements for school classes to visit the "Sky-Roads" exhibit of "the world in the air age" in the auditorium of the Department of Commerce under the guidance of CAA experts, it was announced yesterday.

Officials said that some 500 persons saw the exhibit at the opening day yesterday and announced that it will remain open until January 8.

An essay contest for grade and high school students on "The Place of Civil Aviation in the Postwar World" is being conducted by the CAA. Information is available from the Sky-Roads Essay Contest Secretary, Information and Statistics Service, CAA.

Student-Nurse Status Upheld

Student nurses at St. Elizabeth's Hospital will retain their civil service status, and the overtime pay that goes with it, Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent, announced yesterday "with joy."

Paychecks, covering the period since November 1, were made out late yesterday afternoon following the receipt of the Comptroller General's decision which approved the past practices of the hospital administration.

"We are very happy, of course," Dr. Overholser said, "that we have been upheld and that we can continue to pay the nurses overtime." The Comptroller General now has ruled definitely that the Bolton Act does not concern St. Elizabeth's student nurses. I think we have served their interests as well as clarified our administrative task by confirming their position without any doubts."

Under the new ruling, the student nurses will continue to get $43 a month, plus room and board. Of this amount, $19 are paid for overtime.

Children of Service Dads Lack Adequate Care, Survey Shows

(This is the first of a series of stories on the child-care situation.)

By Walter Wood

Congress has failed to provide adequate care for children of the prewar fathers now being drafted in ever-increasing numbers, a survey disclosed yesterday.

The Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, meanwhile, has prepared a four-point program which would take care of the toddlers being left behind by pre-Pearl Harbor dads. But, the Bureau is forced to sit back and wait because of a lack of funds.

Child-care experts are alarmed by the prospect of thousands of additional children needing a helping hand by next summer. The problem will increase, it was said, as more fathers are called. Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, has said that one million dads will be drafted by July, 1944. Most of their children are two years old or younger.

FWA Program

The Federal Works Agency, it was shown, is the only Government agency with funds available for financing projects for the care of children.

FWA, using Lanham Act money, has set up daycare centers in scores of communities to help care for children of mothers in war work, but the FWA program is limited to group-care and does not provide for youngsters under two years old.

A Senate-passed bill which would look out for the children of the men who are going to war has bogged down in the House Education and Labor Committee, overshadowed by the more spectacular congressional battles over subsidies, soldiers' vote and rail wages.

The measure, introduced by Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Utah, has been in the hands of the House committee since July. It calls for 20 million dollars annually for child care and gives administrative authority to the Children's Bureau and the Office of Education of the Federal Security Agency.

Thomas Bill Program

It is to the Thomas bill that the Children's Bureau, headed by Katherine F. Lenroot, has geared its new program. Its four points include counseling service at the time of deciding whether the mother is going to work, group care for children of preschool age and before-and-after school service for pupils, health and homemaker service to enable children to remain in their own homes under supervision of trained women, and foster-family day care for small children in neighborhood homes.

Figures compiled by the Children's Bureau show that 35 per cent of all requests for child care are for foster homes.

In nearby Arlington, Va., a center for many war workers, 73 requests were made for day care in three months. The age distribution was 26 infants to two years; 31 two years to school age, and 16 of school age.

In the Capital 20 per cent of requests were for foster home care; 25 per cent for group-care, and 27 per cent for before and after school services.

Make him say "降參"

"降參" means "I surrender" in Japanese and the day we can make the Jap civilian say it, the end of this war will not be far away.

There's only one way to do it. We've got to beat him at his own game of hard work and sacrifice . . . to give our fighting forces everything they need to drive him back in his corner.

He believes that the last war ended when the German home front cracked. He knows that it's your sacrifices against his.

That's why he's working fourteen hours a day, living on rice, and making every effort to beat us — to beat you — today.

Make no mistake, he's no pushover. Beating him means digging down in our pockets to the limit for war bonds.

For us it means saving food . . . fewer car miles . . . getting along without the oldtime luxuries . . . throwing our whole productive effort into the fight.

Then it'll be just too bad for Mr. Jap.

THIS is published by The Texas Company to acknowledge the importance of YOU — the American citizen — in winning this war. Even before the war it was YOU who built the strongest military asset America had — our productive capacity. Today it serves us well.

Cost of Living Declines .2% During Month Ended Nov. 15

A decrease of two-tenths of 1 per cent in prices paid by city workers for goods and services "they commonly buy" was noted yesterday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the month ending November 15, with a seven-tenths per cent drop in food bills getting credit for the reduction.

Food price declines were due chiefly to lower prices of fresh fruits and vegetables—with seasonal declines for oranges, spinach and cabbage and a 3.8 per cent drop in apple prices mostly responsible—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said in the monthly report.

The average price of peanut butter went down 2.4 cents per pound as first effects of the 4½-cents-per-pound subsidy were felt. Fresh fish prices rose 3.8 per cent and there were seasonal increases for green beans, sweet potatoes and onions, while Irish potato prices rose "much less than usual for this time of year." Prices of pork and beef declined slightly in some areas.

While the national level declined, some areas felt increases in cost of living prices. West Coast cities felt the greatest jump.

Clothing and house furnishings costs remained unchanged, on the average, with shortages of all types of children's wear—particularly shoes—continuing to be reported. Stocks of men's white shirts, perennial favorites as Christmas gifts, also were generally low.

Fuel prices rose slightly due to higher gas rates, new ceilings for anthracite coal in New York and higher prices for wood in several cities.

The trend continued upward for personal service charges such as haircuts, beauty shop and laundry services. A cigarette sales tax of 2 cents per package was noted in St. Louis and a 2 cents per quart sales tax for milk in Denver.

Washington Food Costs Dip 1.9%

Food costs in Washington, as reflected in most commonly purchased commodities, decreased 1.9 per cent from October 15 to November 15, according to cost-of-living index figures released yesterday.

This drop, considerably more than the national average, was combined with a two-tenths per cent decrease in the prices of fuel, electricity, and ice to give the city a six-tenths overall decrease in cost-of-living items.

D. C. Vegetable, Fruit Prices Firm

Estimated maximum prices on fresh vegetables and fruit for the week ending next Wednesday were announced yesterday by the District OPA, which listed few variations in the new price ranges. Charges for oranges and stringbeans dropped slightly, while grapefruit and tomatoes will be more expensive.

Ickes Reveals Background Of Coal Crisis

The Nation's coal problem could have been solved last April 30 with a $1.25 a day increase in miners' pay, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes revealed publicly for the first time in addressing a luncheon meeting of the Federal Bar Association yesterday.

He attributed the remark to a statement which he said John L. Lewis made to him, following unsuccessful negotiations for a new wage agreement last spring.

"The operators had come up to the point where they were willing to give a dollar a day increase," Ickes said. "The miners were down to demanding $1.50 a day. After the failure to agree I asked John L. Lewis if the miners would have accepted $1.25 a day if the offer had been made, and he told me that the committee had instructions to accept that amount if offered when they went to the last conference."

Finally Got Increase

Under an agreement which Ickes signed with the miners to end the fourth general coal strike, the miners received a $1.50 a day increase for an assumed extra hour's work.

"It's all very well to say 'damn John L. Lewis,'" Ickes continued. "He means nothing to me. But I was told by the President to mine coal. I can't mine coal without miners. John L. Lewis is the only man who can furnish miners, and we need coal to win the war."

At the outset of his speech Ickes asserted that by next fall America may face a disaster in the coal situation.

"We're badly off with respect to coal and it's going to get worse," the fuels administrator said. "It is yet to be determined whether we're going to have peace or war in the coal industry. If we're going to have war—God help us!"

"If there had been good will on both sides" a wage agreement could have been worked out and there wouldn't have been any interruption of production, he said.

Miners Were Cooperative

"At the time of Pearl Harbor," he said, "the miners were working under a 1931 agreement. They agreed immediately to work under that agreement until expiration of the contract. The miners might well have said we didn't make that contract under war conditions and we want an adjustment, but they kept working under that contract.

"I wouldn't bet anybody as I stand here today," he continued, "that there won't be another anthracite strike."

The oil situation is better this year than last, Ickes said, and the transportation difficulties of oil "are licked." The trouble now is that there just isn't enough oil to go around.

We can be proud of the unity of our commands abroad, he said, "but we can't be so proud of our so-called unity here at home.

"Are we really interested in democracy? I wonder if after the war it is going to be a case of dog eat dog. Are we headed for a better and smoother working democracy or are we headed to a type of American fascism? I can't see clearly into our future."

Ickes Orders Hard-Coal Delivery Cut

Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes yesterday moved to meet a deficit of one-eighth of the hard coal supplies needed for home heating this winter by forbidding consumers to accept more than seven-eighths of their anticipated requirements for the coal year ending March 31, 1944.

Consumers already have provided dealers with statements of anticipated needs for the year. Dealers will be responsible for administration of the order, authority for which was provided Ickes by a presidential order making him solid fuels administrator.

Consumers will be permitted to secure bituminous coal to meet any additional needs which cannot be filled by anthracite under the order.

Governors Advised

In a second action to stretch the short supply of hard coal, Ickes telegraphed the Governors of 11 Eastern States in the anthracite-consuming area and advised them that shipments on State contracts will be reduced 50 per cent beginning January 1.

The coal freed by this action will be made available to smaller users, Ickes said. The States will be expected to make use of bituminous coal to bring their fuel supplies for State institutions up to needs.

Dealers Well Supplied

No message was sent to the District Commissioners, it was learned, because of the relatively small amount of coal consumed by the District government, but consideration was being given to a possible request to District officials to make some use of soft coal.

District coal dealers reported that they were in good supply with respect to both hard and soft coal for the present.

Ickes sent messages to the Governors of Maryland, Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont.

The shortage of anthracite available for home heating was estimated at 5,100,000 tons over the heating year by Ickes.

Under previously instituted regulations, householders who expect to consume less than 12 tons of hard coal a year were forbidden to accept additional supplies of coal if they have more than two tons on hand.

Advise Mixing of Coal

Meanwhile the United States Bureau of Mines gave this advise to consumers:

"In general, the home fireman experienced in burning anthracite will obtain better results by firing a mixture of anthracite and low-volatile bituminous coal, than in attempting to burn the bituminous coal alone. For mixing, anthracite and bituminous coal should be similar in size to minimize segregation."

The agency suggested using 4 by 2 soft coal with anthracite egg, 3 by 1½ soft with anthracite stove, 2 by 1 soft with chestnut hard, and 1 by ½ soft with pea hard.

Many Prisoners Chose to Stay In Philippines, Rotarians Told

Disclosure that many internees in the Philippines were choosing continued imprisonment rather than repatriation because of their determination to remain as a symbol of the United States on conquered soil was made yesterday by Russell Brines, a member of the Manilla staff of the Associated Press who was interned when the Islands fell.

BRINES

Speaking before the Rotary Club at the Willard Hotel, Brines, who returned recently as an exchange prisoner, said American initiative had amazed the Japs, and that the individual well-being of the prisoners was remarkable under the circumstances.

Brines said there were 32 civilian interment camps maintained by the Japanese and all but those in the Hongkong area were understood to be operated satisfactorily.

Prisoners in the Hongkong area, he said, were likely to undergo a difficult winter because of the effectiveness of the Allied blockade in those waters.

The heaviest load borne by prisoners of war in the western arena is not bad housing, inadequate food or fear, but monotony, Dr. D. A. Davis, associate secretary of the YMCA's World Committee at Geneva who toured German camps before Pearl Harbor, has informed relatives of Washington internees.

Their favorite indoor sport is planning escape.

Lieut. Vericella, Army Nurse, Buried With Arlington Rites

Lieut. Elizabeth Vericella, 29, Army nurse, who died Monday after an illness of several months at the home of her parents, 113 Carroll st. se., was interred yesterday in Arlington National Cemetery with military honors.

VERICELLA

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cal Leek, she was born in Tennessee, but lived in the District most of her life. Following her graduation in 1931 with honors from Eastern High School, she was trained at the Nurses School at Emergency Hospital. Before entering the Army in August, 1942, she was engaged in private duty nursing and was a nurse-secretary in the office of Dr. Edmund Borgan.

A member of the Metropolitan Baptist Church since 1923, she was honored at services held in the church on August 2, 1942, just before she reported for active duty at Camp Pickett, Va. At that time she said that she was entering the service not in a spirit of adventure, but from a sense of duty.

She was stationed at the McCloskey General Hospital, Temple, Tex., when illness forced her to leave the service in July. Soon after she was married to Sergt. Samuel A. Vericella, Medical Corps technician, in the chapel at Camp Pickett, where they had met the previous year.

In addition to her husband and parents, she is survived by four brothers, James A. and Harry C. Leek, both of Washington; Capt. Wallace R. Leek, United States Army, now in the South Pacific, and Capt. Calvin Leek, United States Army, at Camp Edwards, Mass.

Dr. John H. Kellogg

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 15 (AP).—Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, 91, famed physician, health authority and head of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, died in the night at his home. He had been in failing health for about six months.

Dr. Kellogg was a practicing surgeon while still in his seventies, and was the author of several books on dietetics. He had continued to operate the Battle Creek Sanitarium in other quarters after the Army established the Percy Jones General Hospital more than a year ago in the institution's principal building.

Mrs. Kathleen S. Holmes

Mrs. Kathleen Sexton Holmes, Washington correspondent for the Jackson (Miss.) Daily News and other papers, died of a heart attack yesterday in New York, where she was on a vacation with her husband, George Sanford Holmes of the Public Relations Division of the War Department.

Mrs. Holmes, who lived at 3930 Connecticut ave., was active in the Women's National Press Club and a member of the Senate and House press galleries.

She is survived by her daughter, Miss Kathleen Spiller; her mother, Mrs. James Sexton, widow of a Mississippi jurist; three sisters and her husband. Services will be in Hazlehurst, Miss.

Robes And Rulers

Reports from Teheran, at the time of the recent conference, told how Mr. Churchill appeared at the meetings in the uniform of an air commodore, with enough medals on his bosom to make it resemble the keyboard of a great pipe organ. We don't remember having seen any mention of what he wore at Cairo, but it wouldn't surprise us to learn that he turned up in shorts and a pith helmet.

For Mr. Churchill in costume has become versatility itself. He signed the Atlantic Charter in a nautical pea jacket. Three years ago, at the time of the Battle of London, he was wearing the so-called siren suit of the ARP. Last summer, we recall, when Mr. Churchill was given a luncheon by some journalists here, he arrived in a suit of palm beach cloth, a soft white shirt and collar, blue polka-dot bow tie and dark-rimmed spectacles, which is, of course, the traditional hot-weather uniform of the Washington correspondents' corps. Thus it can be pretty safely predicted that when Mr. Churchill takes his seat at the peace table he will be wearing a long loose nightgown and halo.

While Mr. Churchill's fondness for changing his costume may be compared in a way to Herr Goering's, it is necessary to observe that that unhappy marshal has never exhibited anything like the Prime Minister's instinct for adapting his costume to the occasion. Otherwise, the marshal would certainly have put on jester's motley when he made the famous statement about the impregnability of Berlin.

Compromise!

Congress has a duty to the American people to settle the subsidy issue before adjournment. The likelihood seems to be that the Senate will put off the vote and extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corp. for the interim. But any such postponement till after the New Year would seriously hamper farmers and price-control agencies that should be laying plans for next year. In these circumstances we would most strongly urge a compromise.

The bill passed by the House and now before the Senate prohibits only rollback consumer subsidies and subsidies imposed to avoid increasing price ceilings. These are now in force. Food subsidies provided by means of support prices and loans for the purpose of stimulating production are not prohibited by the pending bill. In our opinion the so-called rollback subsidies employed to reduce prices charged consumers at retail are economically undesirable. We wish they had never been utilized. We also believe that the economic effects of suddenly sweeping away all such subsidies have been grossly exaggerated. According to OPA estimates, the sweeping away of the rollback subsidies now in force would raise the food index slightly over 7 per cent and add about 3 per cent to the general cost-of-living index. Certainly an increase of 3 per cent in living costs would not be a valid excuse for the exorbitant wage demands that, according to William H. Davis, chairman of the WLB, and other Administration spokesmen, would follow the dropping of subsidy rollbacks.

A great deal of mischief has been done by official promises to labor that living costs would be rolled back and by ill-advised official warnings that disaster impends if the rollback subsidies are dropped. Indeed, labor leaders have virtually been advised that if the Administration loses out in the current subsidy fight, the last obstacle to uncontrolled wage increases and uncontrollable inflation will be removed. In view, therefore, of the explosive conditions fostered by official prophets of doom, it would be politically foolhardy to throw the rollback subsidies overboard at this juncture. Certainly a subsidy outlay of between one and two billion dollars would be a bagatelle compared with the cost to the Government and to the people of this country of a collapse of the price and wage control program.

Congress could—and should—set a maximum limit to the amount that can be used for rollback subsidies—possibly a sum roughly equivalent to the amount needed to finance the existing program. It might also forbid extension of the rollback program without specific congressional authorization and place a time limit on use of subsidies, as suggested by the minority members of the House Committee on Banking and Currency. Since the subsidy bill, in extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corp., makes that agency accountable to Congress rather than the President for its acts and policies, legislative control over the food-subsidy program would be assured in any event. That makes the case for a reasonable compromise all the stronger.

Log Rolling

There is a spirit in Congress today that evokes memories of the old log-rolling tariff sessions. The spirit is one of sectionalism and special interest, of trading votes for the benefit of particular areas and industries. The latest example of it is Congressman Disney's plea for the oil producers of his own Southwest. It is a plea which ignores the stability of the national economy as a whole for the sake of one element in that economy. If it succeeds in the Senate, as it has already succeeded in the House, it will inevitably be followed by demands for special favors to the cotton farmers of the Southeast and the milk producers and the coal operators and every other commodity group in the country.

"We realize, of course," said Mr. Disney, "that we must hold the line to prevent inflation. We are not trying to break this line; we are trying to get up to the line . . . we will help hold it when we get there." However sincere Mr. Disney may be, he is chasing a will-o'-the-wisp. His bill requires that the price of crude oil be advanced to at least 80 per cent of that mystical concept called parity. But the parity index itself would be raised by this increase in the price of oil. Farmers must purchase oil. The rise in the cost of what they buy would necessitate a rise in the price of what they sell to keep them abreast of parity. And this in turn would require another boost in the price of oil. What Congressman Disney proposes is nothing more than a variation on the dream of perpetual motion.

The argument behind the Disney bill is that higher prices will promote oil production by encouraging new drilling. But this is to ignore the plain fact that we are seriously short of steel for new rigs and acutely short of manpower to operate them. These shortages, not price control, are the real bottleneck. Most owners of wells already drilled are by no means suffering under the present price ceiling. They are making more money now than at any time in the recorded history of the oil industry. Only the marginal producers, the operators of strip wells and secondary recovery processes, are pinched by present prices. If we need their production, we can procure it by the same sort of subsidy we give to marginal producers of copper. Such a subsidy would cost the Nation at most about 40 million dollars. The bill to consumers—just a starter—for Mr. Disney's general price jump would be about 550 million dollars.

Even so, the real and terrible mischief of this measure lies, not in the size of this particular handout, but in its sabotage of the stabilization program. Congress is prying open the lid of Pandora's box. It cannot of itself manage a price-control program. No legislature can cope with the pressures of multitudinous special interest groups, each speciously asserting that it wants only "to get up to the line." The execution of a policy is simply not a legislative function. If Congress scuttles the OPA and attempts to be its own executor in respect to price control, it will see the policy it laid down, and its own independence, swept away in the whirlwind. Once opened, Pandora's box cannot again be closed.

Railroad Protest

Sixteen railroads and terminal companies have announced that it is "impracticable and impossible" for them to bring their hiring policies into conformity with democratic principles. They were directed to do so by the President's Fair Employment Practice Committee. Their response reveals an arrogant and cynical contempt for the committee's purposes, as well as for its authority. They do not evince even a desire to cooperate. They have not denied that their hiring and promotion policies discriminate against Negroes. The simple fact is that for years they have had an agreement with the railroad brotherhoods to decrease the number of Negro firemen and give their jobs to white workers. As a result, Negroes have been progressively squeezed out of a type of employment in which they have been traditionally engaged for 50 years.

The brotherhoods are, of course, no less to blame than the railroad managements. This is not a racial issue. It entails no question of displacing whites with Negroes. It is a matter of the monopoly control of jobs by a union working in cahoots with its employers. The degree to which the employers have entered into the conspiracy is manifested by their distortion of the issue at stake. They argue that fair employment of Negroes would disrupt peaceful relations with their employes and antagonize the traveling public. This is a conjuring up of bugbears. For half a century white workers and travelers have been accustomed to Negro firemen on the railroads.

But jobs for firemen—the nub of the problem because these are the jobs Negroes want and are trained to fill—are ignored by the complaining carriers. Instead they dwell on the possibility that Negroes might want to become engineers or conductors. Even such eminence, one might suppose, ought to be open to workers in a democratic society without regard to race, creed or color. At the moment, however, it does not happen to be a real problem. The problem is to make available to Negroes jobs as firemen and trainmen—jobs for which they are qualified and in which the exigencies of the war effort make them urgently needed. There is a real shortage of workers for such jobs. We could give greater credence to the good faith of the railroads if they cooperated with the FEPC in persuading the brotherhoods to cease discrimination against Negroes in these categories.

What the FEPC has demanded is by no means unrealistic. This is borne out by the fact that four important railroads—the Virginian, the Pennsylvania, the Union Pacific and the New York Central—have moved to comply with its directive. In wartime we cannot permit prejudices or monopolies to keep skilled and willing workers out of essential jobs. As a democracy, we cannot, at any time, permit racial intolerance to govern our economic opportunities. The FEPC has come to grips courageously with a tough problem. It should have the full support, against the obstructionism it has encountered, of the whole Federal Government and the American public.

Crossing The Line

The first World War began on August 1, 1914, and came to an end on November 11, 1918, that is, 4 years 3 months and 10 days later. Thus the parallel point in the present conflict was reached last Saturday, although this time the end is still out of sight. Despite the long succession of defeats which Germany has sustained, from El Alamein to Cherkassy, despite the increasingly violent Allied air assault on the cities of the Reich, Germany has thus far shown no outward signs of cracking. The deduction of some of our "realists" is that Germany will hold out a long time.

This may and may not prove to be the case. Certainly it would be foolish to underestimate the staying power of our enemies, their strength and internal cohesiveness. Above all, the fact must not be minimized that in Germany today, in contrast to the Germany of the Kaiser, there are no media—such as the Reichstag, the press, the political parties—through which discontent can find expression. The Nazi regime is all powerful. Its agents are omnipresent and ruthless. Yet all this is only likely to mean that when cracks in Hitler's edifice do begin to develop, the collapse of the entire structure may occur all of a heap.

At the moment, however, the internal situation in Germany constitutes less of a danger to the Nazi regime than the internal situation in Germany's satellites. That is particularly the case in Bulgaria. Today Bulgaria finds itself in an extremely exposed position. It is hardly surprising, therefore, that, according to a Cairo dispatch to the New York Times, official peace feelers have been communicated by Bulgaria to the Allied governments. The offer made by the Sofia government was obviously unacceptable. It would have pledged the Allies, in return for Bulgaria's severance of her Axis ties, to permit the retention of territories seized from Yugoslavia and Greece. The reply, as might be expected, was that the only terms the Allies are willing to accept are unconditional surrender.

The fact that the Sofia government saw fit even to make any offer is a clear indication that Premier Boshiloff and his colleagues are convinced that Hitler's jig is up. Obviously they think it is time for them to get off the Nazi bandwagon. And, as the situation in the Balkans develops, it may not be very long before the Bulgarian people begin clamoring for peace on any terms. In the last war, it was Bulgaria's defection which gave the coup de grace to the Kaiser's Reich. The defection of Bulgaria this time may have equally serious consequences for Hitler.

Prudent Gardeners

The provident who heeded Secretary Ickes' warning to fill up their coal bins at a time when the thermometer was climbing into the nineties will find themselves spared much of the discomfort resulting from the recent coal rationing program. It now appears that victory gardeners and farmers will do well to follow their example and act upon the advice of the War Food Administration to take in a supply of fertilizer during the winter months. By so doing they will avoid needless shortages and serious inconvenience with the coming of spring. Although the stock of fertilizer available is sufficient for normal demands, it is estimated that transportation difficulties will create unbreakable bottlenecks. Last spring many growers were prevented from obtaining adequate supplies due to labor and gasoline shortages, which threaten to be even more acute next spring. The problem is essentially one of distribution rather than supply. It is possible that the gardener who waits until the planting season to place his order will have the cold comfort of knowing that the warehouses are filled with fertilizer, but that there is no available means of getting it to him. Like the grasshopper in La Fontaine's fable, he may find himself empty-handed, wistfully watching a neighbor, first cousin to the prudent ant, prepare the soil of his victory garden for an abundant crop.

NOVEMBER

There is faint rain on the wind
And the yellow leaves will fall
As always, staining the street
And piling against the wall.

The yellow lights will burn
In a colder night; the sun
Already shrinks from the sky
And the days are sooner done.

By day in the pigeons' square
Only a few will drowse:
The youngest child and his nurse,
And the man too poor to house.

There is faint rain on the wind
And a thousand, as you and I,
Will open the door before they sleep
Remembering things that die.

America At War

Pearl Harbor Doctrine

MINNESOTA, ONCE a stronghold of isolationism, has recently given birth to an interesting educational campaign for postwar international cooperation.

The project is simply conceived and executed in streamlined fashion. Its central purpose is to get widespread public acceptance for the "Pearl Harbor Doctrine," which is a brief statement of American foreign policy for the postwar period. It reads:

"When any nation, anywhere in the world, openly proclaims the theory that might makes right and makes vast military preparations against fictitious foes; or attacks its neighbors and embarks upon a career of conquest, such action is a threat to our 'Life, Liberty and Pursuit of Happiness,' and to the sovereignty of the people of the United States.

"We, therefore, stand ready to support a rule of international law co-operatively backed by adequate force."

The drive to popularize this Pearl Harbor doctrine is being conducted by the Minnesota United Nations Committee, which stanchly supports former Governor Harold Stassen's proposal for a United Nations Government. Donald J. Cowling, who was United States Commissioner of Education during World War I and is now president of Carleton College at Northfield, Minn., heads the committee.

Three Considerations

Some careful thinking underlies the committee's formulation of the Pearl Harbor Doctrine. Three considerations stood out:

1. Most of the discussion about postwar internationalism has dealt with specific problems, and has been on too "intellectual" a level to make much of an impression on the average citizen. The polls show that in general he favors an international organization backed by a police force; but he doesn't have the time or the background to define his position clearly.

If he can have presented to him, however, a statement of basic principles that is brief and understandable, he may be willing to make this his own. The Pearl Harbor Doctrine fills the bill in that it summarizes clearly America's aims in this war.

2. The isolationists have made a "witch word" out of "sovereignty," using it to rally opposition against specific proposals for postwar cooperation. The word is inserted in every congressional bill dealing with our foreign policy; it is a potential loophole for those who may turn isolationist again after the war.

The Pearl Harbor Doctrine is conceived as a means of redefining "sovereignty." It is intended to recapture the well-known witch word from its false friends by gaining acceptance for this simple notion: Sovereignty is endangered not by voluntary cooperation among nations, but by uncontrolled aggression from without.

3. The name "Pearl Harbor Doctrine" was chosen because of the emotional impact of Pearl Harbor, and because the Minnesota committee wants it to become a companion piece to the Monroe Doctrine. Pearl Harbor may have bad connotations for some of us, but the Minnesotans point out that it also taught us a great lesson.

Public Relations Experts

The campaign itself was calculated to bring the issue of internationalism down out of the clouds. Two public relations experts on the committee, W. Howard Chase and R. W. Welch, worked out an elaborate advertising program. Several thousands of dollars were collected from supporters of the idea, and for more than two months a full-page ad appeared in the Minneapolis Tribune each Sunday.

The ads were well illustrated with pictures of children and of the ravages of war, and led up to the Pearl Harbor Doctrine itself by gradual stages. They capitalized on two basic wishes of Americans today: for peace abroad, and for postwar economic security at home.

A checkup on the experiment showed that close to 80 per cent of the Tribune's subscribers had read most of a typical ad, and nearly half had read all of it. This was a much higher rating than was attained by comparable commercial advertising

A State-wide speakers' bureau and a series of radio talks have also been used. United Nations Committees have spread to all parts of Minnesota, and the State Committee is now trying to get cities and towns in other parts of the country to take up the idea, with some success.

This observer has two mental reservations regarding the Pearl Harbor Doctrine. First, a huge amount of money would be needed to bring it into the public eye throughout the country through the advertising devices used so far. And second, even if the doctrine became a national byword and the poison were extracted from the word "sovereignty," new witch words and arguments would be found to hamper the trend toward internationalism.

But the Minnesota campaign is a constructive educational move. And it shows once more that isolationism is moribund in Minnesota.

The Czech Pact

By Barnet Nover

Russian Policy In Central Europe

AT MOSCOW, and again at Teheran, Russia agreed to join forces with Great Britain, the United States, China and all the other peace-loving nations, great and small, in building a new world order based on the principle of collective security.

It is evident, however, that the Soviet leaders, hard-boiled realists all, are by no means convinced that a new League of Nations (or the rehabilitation of the existing league) will alone be sufficient to make Russia secure against future attack.

For that reason the Russian government has for some time been engaged in building special barriers to guard against a repetition of June 22, 1941.

THESE MOVES by Russia have been both negative and positive in their nature.

Negatively, Russia has vetoed plans that were in process of evolution during the early years of the war for the creation of something resembling regional federations in Europe, particularly central and eastern Europe.

The most notable of these plans was that looking toward the creation of a Polish-Czechoslovak customs union after the war. Russia's hostile attitude with regard to this arrangement is said to stem from her bitter memories of the "cordon sanitaire" with which the Allies sought to surround the Soviet Union during the last postwar period.

To be sure, both the Polish and Czechoslovak governments-in-exile strongly denied that any Polish-Czechoslovak entente in the economic or political spheres would in any degree be anti-Russian in orientation. These denials can be taken at their face value.

But the Russians were fearful that whatever their original motivation, such arrangements might ultimately be pointed against them. In any event, the Kremlin's veto inhibited further discussion of the proposed Polish-Czechoslovak customs union and of its Balkan counterpart—the Yugoslav-Greek agreement.

IN THE MEANTIME Russia signed a 20-year treaty of alliance with Great Britain in 1941 and, this week, made a similar pact with Czechoslovakia.

Both of these alliances are directed specifically against Germany. But whereas the Anglo-Russian pact is exclusive to the two signatories, the Russo-Czechoslovak pact is open to a third party, the protocol annexed to that pact declaring that:

"Should any third power bordering on the Soviet Union or the Czechoslovak Republic, and representing in this war an object of German aggression, express a desire to join the present agreement, the latter will be given the possibility of signing this agreement of the Soviet Union and the Czechoslovak Republic, thus making it a tripartite agreement."

Now as it happens, the definition embodied in this protocol, would seem to fit not merely Poland, as the dispatches point out, but also Austria. Certainly in the Moscow Declaration, Austria was described "as the first free country to fall a victim to Hitlerite aggression," and Austria borders Czechoslovakia, though not the Soviet Union, whereas Poland's frontiers touch both.

For the time being, however, the question of what Austria will do is purely academic. The Russo-Czechoslovak pact does help explain why, at Moscow, the future of Austria was singled out for special mention. The disappearance of Austria in the spring of 1938 made possible Hitler's success at Munich. Its reconstitution is necessary, among other reasons, as a barrier to renewed German aggression.

THE PACT with Czechoslovakia makes it doubly clear that Russia does not propose to disinterest herself in the future of central Europe. It also suggests that if there are to be any regional groupings in that part of the Continent they will have to have the approval and possibly be under the aegis of the Soviet Union.

However, the Russo-Czechoslovak pact also contains a proviso (embodied in the Anglo-Russian pact as well) pledging the signatories not to meddle in each other's affairs. In other words, Russia does not propose to employ the system of alliances it is building up to foist Communist regimes on its neighbors.

THE CZECH and British pacts which Russia has signed indicate that the approach to collective security this time will be the reverse of what it was after the last war.

Then Woodrow Wilson envisaged a world order so inclusive, so all-embracing, that it would make all special alliances unnecessary. Now the powers are making their special alliances first, even while planning ultimately to create a system of collective security.

As Eduard Benes, President of Czechoslovakia, pointed out in his Chicago speech last May:

"The organization and tasks of the future system of collective security will probably not be outlined and adopted as a logical, theoretical structure in its entirety, as was the case of the Covenant of the League of Nations after the last war. It is more likely to be a practical, political structure, built up in course of time, step by step in accordance with practical requirements, not from the top down but, proceeding from practice, experience and actual requirements to theory and to a process of construction elaborated by a process of thought."

Government Lands

Not all of the statements made in the editorial entitled "Government Lands," which appeared in your issue of November 22, are correct. Furthermore, in my opinion the editorial does not go to the heart of the public land question. I am writing this letter, not to be argumentative, but to set the record straight.

I find no fault with the view that it is much easier for Government to create great problems than to solve them. As this is probably a basic weakness of all government, I do not interpret it as a criticism of this Administration. Nor do I quarrel with the statement that this Government has become the "greatest landlord in the history of the world." It is a fair charge that is entitled to a fair analysis.

Approximately four-fifths of the Federal lands are devoted to the conservation of natural resources. I am sure that you would be one of the last to yield them up to the mercy of most private owners. The national forests and the grazing districts of the western public domain alone constitute about three-fifths of all of our public lands.

The remaining one-fifth of Federal lands is used for postoffices, customs houses, lighthouses, office buildings, veterans' hospitals, bombing and artillery ranges, Army training camps, flying fields, etc. I take it for granted that most of these are needed and could not, for the present at least, be dispensed with.

The national forests and the grazing districts pay a substantial part of their gross revenues to the States and counties in lieu of taxes. Incidentally, the Federal Real Estate Board has made important proposals for a fair and just solution of the Federal land-tax problem affecting local units of government.

I believe to be groundless the fear of "ever-shrinking jurisdiction of State governments." The Federal Government has proprietary rights, plus exemption from State taxes, but State criminal and civil jurisdictions extend over these Federal conservation lands, including even the State game laws. I did not get the impression from the editorial that you had these facts in mind as you wrote.

Your apprehension that "a large part of our population may ultimately be reduced to a condition of tenancy" is, I am convinced, without foundation. In fact, users of public lands are not "tenants." They are contractual users. The Government, through skilled management, makes the raw material available, and private business harvests and utilized it.

I believe that if you would study the record of this Administration through the days of the Public Works Administration, its management of the national forests and parks and grazing lands, the Indian reservations, wildlife refuges, and similar public land projects, you might be inclined to write an entirely different kind of editorial. Uncooperative Civilians

I wonder if some of your readers would care to answer a couple of questions that are bothering me and other servicemen who have uncomplainingly shed their civilian clothes and way of life to don Uncle Sam's khaki and blue.

What has happened to the "good neighbor" policy so far as the residents of Washington are concerned. Have they no conscience when they see some serviceman thumbing a ride while they go tearing by using up the very gasoline that is needed by the armed forces and refuse to give a fellow a lift. Is that the omen of what the future for veterans will be?

And how about the cost of many items necessary to servicemen? Just as an example let's take haircuts. The cost for being sheared is 75 cents, with no consideration for the serviceman's pay, which most frequently is $54 per month minus deductions.

I'd like to hear from some of your readers on this subject.

Gilding The Lily

William Bunker of Silver Spring probably is just trying to be funny. His suggestion of "glorious murals" on the outer walls of the National Gallery reminds me of the proposal of the rich London brewer who wanted billboards on Westminster Abbey. Doubtless there also were plenty of fools at the time when Phidias was building the Parthenon. Shakespeare refers to such blitherites in King John. They would "gild refined gold" or "add another hue unto the rainbow."

Program Of Death

By Paul Winkler

Jewish Persecutions

IN THE speeding up of the German campaign for the extermination of the Jews of Europe, which is occurring at the very period when it might seem more reasonable to expect that the Nazis would be abandoning their persecutions for fear of imminent punishment, some categories of Jews are momentarily, at least, escaping the general fate. There is no guarantee that their immunity will long continue, for there have been examples in the past of Jews, originally passed over when the modern tumbrels of death were filled, being included in later groups. But for the moment, it is possible to report that Jews coming under a few headings have remained comparatively unscathed.

In Holland, for instance, husbands and wives of non-Jews have not been sent off to death with the others—but during the last three months they have all had to submit to sterilization.

Also able to escape the executioner were certain favored persons whose friends were able to pay 25,000 Swiss francs (about $5000) apiece to save their lives. For somewhat higher amounts permits to travel to Switzerland were sometimes granted.

Palestinian Immigration

Finally, special treatment has in most cases been given to Jews with Palestinian immigration certificates or with visas for South American countries. They were not sent to Poland, but to concentration camps in central Germany, and have been told that eventually they will be permitted to leave the country. It appears that the reason for this treatment of Jews with exit visas is that the Germans want to be able to use the propaganda argument that the Allies share the responsibility for their extermination of the Jews of Europe by closing to them the doors of Palestine and the Western Hemisphere.

The "scientific system" behind this German madness is clearly discernible, though its motives are often obscure. It is obvious that this slaughter of the Jews, which is occurring throughout occupied Europe through the operations of a vast and complicated administrative machinery, is no case of haphazard satisfaction of feelings of hate or revenge experienced by certain Nazi leaders.

Indeed, underground reports today are to the effect that the slaughter of the Jews has now become more than a Nazi project. It is a German project. Alfred Rosenberg, the mystic who gives ferocious adherence to the doctrine of racial purity (and has been openly identified as the inspirer of these operations by some of the German "special commissions" for hunting down the Jews in various countries), seems to have succeeded in convincing non-Nazi German leaders, as well as the party heads, of the importance of cleaning all the Jews out of Europe.

Rosenberg's Argument

Rosenberg's argument is said to be that, far from calling off the campaign because punishment now seems near, it must be speeded up so that the extermination of the Jews can be completed while Germany is still able to attend to it. Whether victorious or not (this time), Rosenberg insists, Germany must continue its campaign to de-Judaize and de-Christianize all of Europe, and return it to the old Teutonic ruthless paganism.

This is an angle of the situation which few outsiders have considered—that the campaign against the Jews is part of the campaign against Christianity; for Rosenberg holds that the Jewish and Christian religions alike are part of the same general doctrine of human concepts which are directly opposed to the Teutonic dogma that might makes right. The first step, he holds, in uprooting Judeo-Christian philosophy is to uproot the Jews. It will then be easier to win over the Christians to the Teutonic way of thinking, or at least, perhaps, to win over enough of them so that they can go to work to exterminate the others.

Rosenberg's theory, which seems to have secured general official acceptance, is that to carry out Germany's future plans of expansion, this is a necessary step which should not be affected by the detail of whether this particular war ends in defeat or victory for Germany. In fact, if Germany goes down to military defeat, but succeeds in the meantime in getting rid of this entire body of her enemies, men like Rosenberg will consider that Germany has actually won a victory; for they will not accept this defeat as final, and if it is incurred under conditions which will improve the chances of winning the military victory next time, they will consider that the Second World War has advanced them on their way to the ultimate goal. After a defeat, the spirit of Nazism, which is the spirit of Prusso-Teutonism, will of course have to go underground; but its chances of emerging again, more powerful than ever, and the chances of official Germany's being able to stage a comeback, will be enhanced in a Europe "freed of Jewish influence."

Such considerations account for the speed with which the slaughter of the Jews is being pressed. It is not being done in spite of the probability of a German defeat, but because of the probability of a German defeat. A victorious Germany would have time to proceed slowly in carrying out its program of death. But a Germany which is losing the war cannot wait.

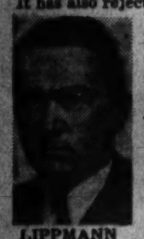
Taxes—The Best Solution

ALL THE NEW tax plans have now been defeated. Congress has rejected the Treasury plan. It has also rejected the sales tax.



LIPPMANN

Yet the tax bill passed by the House is altogether inadequate, and it seems fairly certain that the Senate version will be still less adequate.

There is, however, no use crying over spilt milk. In fact, it may well be that all the current tax plans have failed because none of them promises to do directly, efficiently, and obviously the one thing on which the great mass of our people are agreed. None of them is unmistakably a tax designed for the single purpose of controlling the wartime inflation.

YET IT IS possible to set up a purely anti-inflation tax for the emergency, a tax which not only could be, but necessarily would be, removed when the war is over. It is a tax which, so far as I can see, meets every rational objection to any of the current plans and combines the constructive advantages of all of them. This is the spending tax—a progressive tax levied not on income nor on th sales of the bare necessities of life but on the amount of money, above a minimum, spent for consumer goods by individuals and families.

Only expenditures on consumer goods—above a bare minimum which would be exempt—would be taxable. Any income which had not been spent by the end of the year would not be taxable, whether it was held in cash or in a bank balance, was invested in Government bonds, in securities, or in property, or had been paid for insurance, taxes, interest, or loaned out, or used to pay off mortgages and debts. Money spent by a farmer or a business man in connection with his business would not be touched by the tax. Moreover, money paid out for education, for doctors' bills, and similar desirable and noninflationary purposes, could and should be exempted. What would be taxed, and that on a rising scale, would be the money spent on those consumer goods—above the minimum—which are in short supply during the war.

THE TREASURY in September, 1942, itself proposed such a spendings tax, and it has stated that the tax, though new, "does not require an expensive additional administrative setup, but can be administered almost entirely on the basis of the existing income tax organization." It is probably true that the original 1942 Treasury scheme was too complicated and was too severe: a simple and moderate use of this tax system would probably serve the purpose.

The plan should now be revived, revised, reconsidered, and laid before Congress and the country. For it is the answer to the problem, and all the contending parties to this tax argument could agree upon it without sacrificing any of the principles on which they have made their stand.

THUS THERE has been a strong feeling in Congress that the income tax already takes as large a proportion of men's income as it is desirable to take. The spendings tax, recognizing this condition, concerns itself not with reducing incomes but with discouraging men for the time being from spending them unnecessarily. The less a man spends and the more he saves, the less tax he pays and the more of his income he preserves.

There has been a strong feeling elsewhere that the proper tax in the emergency is a sales tax because this would hit consumption directly. But the spendings tax also hits consumption directly, and so accomplishes the same result. On the other hand it can be graduated so that the more a man spends on consumption the more he pays. Therefore, it cannot be attacked as regressive and socially unjust.

There has been a strong sentiment for some scheme of compulsory saving. The spendings tax puts a premium on savings and a penalty on nonsaving by taxing that part of an income, but only that part, which is not saved.

THE SPENDINGS tax, in short, is streamlined for the one necessary purpose, while the war is on, of discouraging extravagance and of inducing thrift. It need not be complicated. It ought not to be oppressive. It is by definition temporary since no one would think of retaining it once industry had returned to civilian production and was in need of customers.

The spendings tax is not a device for transferring private incomes to the Government Treasury. On the contrary, its primary purpose is to induce the people to keep their own money until they can safely spend it. Therefore, it backs up with powerful reinforcement all who own Government bonds, all the banks, the insurance companies, as well as all our people who have fixed salaries, pensions, soldiers' allowances, mortgages and debts.

THIS IS A tax which, the more successful it is, the less money it will take from the people. It is a way, therefore, of protecting the people against inflation in wartime while it leaves with the people money which they can use after the war to revive private business. It should have the support of all who intend to prevent inflation, to maintain the national credit and a sound currency, and to restore private enterprise.

Tax Unit to Retain All on Roll

By International News Service

The Senate Finance Committee voted late yesterday to retain the present "Victory tax" in place of an individual income tax simplification plan in the House Revenue bill.

The action of the committee followed a protest by Randolph Paul, Treasury general counsel, that the House simplification plan would be so complicated as to jeopardize the income tax system.

Under the plan agreed upon by the committee the present combined victory and income tax structure will be retained, subject to such modifications in the victory levy as may be agreed upon later.

The victory tax, as recently modified by Congress, ranges from less than 3 per cent on a married man with dependents to 3.5 per cent on a single person. It applies on all gross income over $12 per week, and affects more than 45 million persons.

The House bill would repeal the victory tax and, in its stead, would boost the normal levy from six to ten per cent, and impose on low-income groups now subject only to the victory tax, a minimum levy of 3 per cent over exemptions of $500 a year for a single person, $700 for married persons, with an additional $100 allowed for each dependent.

Earlier, the committee agreed to retain on the tax rolls the 11 million persons now subject only to the victory levy.

A top-heavy majority of the committee voted to continue to collect income taxes from Victory tax payers. Only a couple of Senators are reported to have voted in the negative.

The committee action revealed the deep seated difference which exists between it and the Treasury on income tax policy, since Randolph Paul, Treasury general counsel, had just completed a statement in which he insisted the victory taxpayers should be dropped from the rolls.

He declared "real simplification" of the individual income tax law could not be achieved unless this were done.

Paul told the finance committee that Commissioner of Internal Revenue Robert E. Hannegan had informed the congressional joint committee on internal revenue taxation that the victory levy would be preferable to the minimum tax.

He quoted Hannegan as saying the administrative burden "would be less if the victory tax were continued."

Red Cross Seeks Nurses' Aides

The Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, will hold two meetings tonight at 8 o'clock, one at the Buckingham Community Building and the other at the Colonial Village ballroom, at which time the nurses aide program will be outlined by representatives of the chapter.

At each of the meetings a representative of the chapter will be on hand to interview applicants and to explain the program.

Officials said yesterday that the first class will begin January 3 at 9 a. m. at the Arlington Hospital located on North 16th st. about one mile west of Glebe rd. Miss Edna Conrad, registered nurse will instruct the class.

Queen Has Daughter

Cairo, Dec. 15 (AP).—A 21-gun salute instead of the hoped-for 101 announced the birth early tonight of a third daughter of Queen Farida and King Farouk I of Egypt. The longer salute by Egyptian soldiers standing by at Addin Palace would have hailed the arrival of a boy.

Tempers Crack Again in Senate On Soldier Vote Controversy

For the third time in 10 days tempers broke in the Senate yesterday in a continuing backfire of political feeling on pending soldier-vote legislation.

Senate rejection of the Green-Lucas Federal war ballot bill kicked back this time in a bitter personal exchange between an Illinois Democrat and an Oklahoma Republican.

Senator Moore, 72-year-old Oklahoma Democrat turned Republican after the 1940 election, touched off the debate by assailing the constitutionality of the Green-Lucas bill. Moore charged it was designed to return the New Deal, and urged Southern Democrats to join an anti-fourth-term alliance.

Lucas Is Angered

This angered Senator Lucas, Illinois Democrat and co-author of the bill that was rejected in favor of a State-controlled soldiers' vote substitute. Terming Moore's speech "contemptible," Lucas charged he was using the Constitution as a "cloak" to hide his opposition to the soldiers' vote, and declared Republicans are "afraid" of the President's renomination.

Lucas also replied to a newspaper interview in which Moore implied the "palace guard" had a hand in drafting the war ballot bill, and declared the fourth term "jig" is up.

"If the fourth term jig is up, you ought to welcome Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate," said Lucas. "You are constantly condemning the fourth term. Why are you afraid of him? If you are not afraid of him you ought to say: 'Thank God he is going to run for a fourth term; he will be just easy picking for us in 1944.'"

The series of Senate political clashes started ten days ago with a statement by Senator Guffey (Democrat) of Pennsylvania charging an "unholy alliance" between Republicans and Southern Democrats to deny the soldiers the vote.

Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia replied with a demand for Guffey's resignation as Senate Democratic campaign chairman. Senator Bailey (Democrat) of North Carolina followed through with a warnnig that Southern Democrats can form their own branch of the party rather than submit to continuing "insults." Later Senator Smith (Democrat) of South Carolina urged Southern Democrats to form their own party and nominate Byrd for President.

Fourth Term Issue

Yesterday Moore raised the fourth term issue for the first time and suggested "to the Senators from Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina that they should join an alliance that could be made effective against a repetition of such tyranny."

The Oklahoma Republican called the 1940 Chicago convention a tragic mockery, where tradition was "arrogantly flouted to obtain a third term to satiate the greed of an ambitious man for more power."

He added: "And now his appetite, having grown by what it fed upon, we are being led through sophistry into the danger of a fourth term dictatorship that can never be dislodged short of revolt."

Lucas accused Moore of condemning "officers in every camp in this land and elsewhere, and charging them with a conspiracy with this Administration to herd these boys into etvery camp and vote them en bloc for New Deal candidates."

"Shame on you," shouted Lucas. "Just imagine indicating that the Hopkinses and the Frankfurters have something to do with writing this bill."

So bitter was Lucas, that at one point Acting Senate Minority Leader White objected that he was "impugning the motives" of the Oklahoman. The chair cautioned Lucas to follow Senate rules.

We must keep faith

At Christmas, perhaps more than at any other time, we realize what it means to be an American . . . to worship as we please . . . to give our children a sound, normal life. And in the shining eyes of those children we see reflected a confidence that we will keep faith with them by preserving our Nation's freedom and democratic ideals.

To keep that faith, we must work and sacrifice, not only through the buying of bonds, but by devoting our energies to the task of winning a victorious peace.

The 50,000 Union Pacific employees engaged in transportation, so vital to victory, join with all other fighters for freedom in striving toward that common goal. Whatever it costs, we must keep faith.

Munsey Trust Plans $750,000 Cut in Capital

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of the Munsey Trust Company will vote January 18 on a proposal to reduce the par value of capital stock from $100 to $62.50 a share, thereby reducing the company's capitalization by $750,000.

In a letter to stockholders, President C. H. Pope said that directors of the company had approved the step in order to accomplish these objectives:

First, a reduction in the carrying value of the stock of the Munsey Realty Company by $250,000, or a reduction from $1,900,000 to $1,650,000. Second, a chargeoff on the company's books of approximately $350,000 of the carrying value of certain real estate mortgages.

If the proposal to reduce par value of capital stock is approved by stockholders, capitalization would be changed from $2,000,000 to $1,250,000, thereby making $750,000 available on the books. The latter amount would be applied as follows: 1—$584,500 to the writedown of the realty company stock and the charge-offs of certain mortgages; 2—$139,600 to be added to surplus account to increase the latter from $1,110,400 to $1,250,000, thereby equalizing capital and surplus; 3—the $25,900 balance to be added to the reserve for contingencies.

"Your trust company's banking quarters," said Mr. Pope in his statement, "are housed in the Munsey Building, which is owned by the Munsey Realty Co. All of the stock of the realty company is owned in turn by the trust company. The reason for writing down the stock of the realty company from $1,900,000 to $1,650,000 is to bring the carrying value thereof into approximate agreement with the present depreciated base of the Munsey Building for income tax purposes.

"The Munsey Building property, including additions, cost $2,840,343.74 and the carrying value on the books . . . has previously been written down to $1,900,000 . . .

"The $350,000 charge-off of certain real estate mortgages is made in the light of the law relating to trust companies, prohibiting the holding of real estate acquired by foreclosure for more than five years, regardless of value."

Liquor Stocks Soar in Uneven List

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The whisky situation caused about the only vibrations worthy of note in today's stock market.

As key industrials and rails continued on the narrow and irregular course pursued since the start of the week, buyers put on a rush for American Distilling and Park & Tilford to get some liquor at bargain prices or its money equivalent.

An opening jump of 12½ points in the volatile American Distilling was touched off by overnight announcement of the company's plan for transferring its whisky holdings to shareholders. Wall Street reports that Park & Tilford was working on an arrangement to pass on some of its liquor inventory to shareholders at cost lifted that issue about 9 points. Park & Tilford closed near the top, but Distilling finished several points under the best.

Steels, motors and most other key groups showed trifling variations. Of 807 different stocks traded, 302 advanced, 281 declined and 224 were unchanged.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite, reflecting the selective strength of rails, was up .1 of a point at 48.9. The industrial and utility averages were unchanged.

Low-priced rail loans were in demand in the bond market. Chicago wheat closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent a bushel higher. Hogs were steady.

Many Crosses Borne in Grim Film

'Cross of Lorraine' Opens at Capitol; Josephine Houston Stars on the Stage

GRIM, TERRIFYING and at the same time inspiring in its reflection of the courage of a conquered people and their willingness to die to insure the future freedom of their land, "The Cross of Lorraine" will unfold itself for the first time in Washington, beginning this morning, on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater.

While the French, rebellious against the brutal tryanny of the Nazis, are the subject of the picture's stern developments, the story, adapted by Michael Kanin and Ring Lardner, jr., Alexander Esway and Robert D. Andrews, from another one by Lilo Damert and Robert Aisner, and largely from Hans Habe's "A Thousand Shall Fall," is one that could apply equally to the citizens of any nation mutilated and overrun by a barbaric and ruthless enemy.

The story is initiated by the demobilization of a group of former French soldiers, who ostensibly are being returned to their homes and normal civilian pursuits. Herded into a blind boxcar, this cross-section of the social scale—the stofekeeper, the cab driver, the lawyer, the doctor, the priest and a professional soldier or two—discuss their predicament, their ambitions and hopes for a better peacetime world. Their jubilation runs high when the train stops, presumably "back home" in France. Where it actually has stopped is at the entrance to a military prison in Germany. Not a civilian concentration camp, a military prison, equipped for exquisite tortures of both mind and body.

A Tense Human Study

Out of this emerges a composite pattern of behavior, expressive of many reactions to the inhumanity of the strong toward the weak. A young French "Quisling" accepts the post of barracks interpreter to lessen his personal hardships. The doctor pursues the highest traditions of his profession. The lawyer attempts a philosophical solution of the common problem. The taxi driver surrenders to the impulse of total defiance and pays for his impetuosity with everything but his life. The over-all picture is one of stark brutality, suffering, wanton murder and magnificent fortitude.

When Duval is done to the death of the faint-hearted by his former comrades, and Paul Dupray, the lawyer, takes over his duties, the stage is set for a thrilling escape and the exciting events in a distant French village that bring the picture to a climax of swift, thrilling and thunderous action which forecasts the doom of the Nazi invaders.

All this has been forcefully written and shrewdly executed, with a keen eye to suspense, sharp contrasts of character and a reasonably convincing crystallization of the principles of free men for which the world is fighting.

Uniformly Able Cast

The predominantly male cast has been chosen with fine fidelity to type and efficiency. The pivotal parts of lawyer, cabby, priest, doctor, professional soldier and "Quisling" are respectively played for all they are worth by Jean Pierre Aumont, who turns in an especially fine performance; Gene Kelly, in the most harrowing role of them all; Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who is rewarded with death for his kindly compassion; Richard Whorf, a thoughtful realist; Joseph Calleia, whose early cynicism is abundantly vindicated, and Hume Cronyn, who somehow contrives to make an obnoxious character vaguely sympathetic.

The Nazi tyrants are repulsively and splendidly impersonated by Tonio Selwart and Peter Lorre, although Mr. Lorre, for some imperceptible reason, appears less ominous than usual. Excellent supporting performances are contributed by Wallace Ford, Jack Lambert, Donald Curtis, Jack Edwards, jr., Richard Ryan, Paul Marion and Emma Dunn, an important cog in the village underground.

The production is in helpful harmony with the moods and emotions into which the various movements of the drama divide themselves, and Tay Garnett's direction is vigorous and courageous in refusing to compromise with what are accepted as the facts of life in Nazi military prisons.

The stage bill supplementing this powerful indictment will be headlined by Josephine Houston, singing star borrowed from the Blue Network; Lucienne and Ashour, Apache dancers; the Three Edwards Brothers, and Cy Reeves, comedian, in turn augmented by the customary house features —a likely symposium of living entertainment the precise nature of which will be considered here on a later day, the gods and the flu germs being propitious.

GENE KELLY, WALLACE FORD, JOSEPH CALLEIA foreground (left to right) as they appear in one of the most intense moments of suspense in "The Cross of Lorraine," stark story of the defeat of France and the working of the underground, which this morning opens its first Washington engagement, on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. What the high card won was the privilege of dying violently at Nazi hands!

LEONARD LYONS

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Dec. 15.—A few days ago 50 American nurse officers were invited to be the guests of the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace. King George's secretary, Sir Eric Mieveille, studied the uniformed nurses, and said, provingly: "How times have changed. Before the war the girls would put three feathers in their hair before coming to this house. Now they've been commanded to wear their hats" . . . The Truman Committee will issue a report on the five traveling Senators, dubbed by the President "the fellow travelers." The report will state that they did constructive work . . . Dewey had a four-hour session with the New York Times' editors.

EDDIE CANTOR

The wife of Dr. Alfonzo Lopez, president of Colombia, is a flu victim in New York . . . The editor of Time, Inc., eliminated Stalin from its Man-of-the-Year poll last weekend . . . Eddie Cantor is experimenting with a new radio show—a 30-minute weekly program, adapting a Book-of-the Month, with an all-star Hollywood cast. The actors will be called the Stars-of-the-month . . . The caviar Donald Nelson is eating these days was presented to him by Stalin . . . When Nelson was in Moscow he was served hot water, in a demi-tasse cup, in the morning. "In a demi-tasse cup?" he asked. "Is this for coffee?" He was told: "No. For shaving."

Corp. Dashiell Hammett, creator of "The Thin Man," is in the Aleutians. He's written a 15,000-word pamphlet about the Aleutians, which the Army will publish . . . Corporal Hammett, who has been in the Army two years, is a 49-year-old veteran of the last war. He was a sergeant then, and was mustered out, disabled . . . New Orleans men are in town, planning a Pan-American Fair in that city, after the war . . . The N. Y. Times has eliminated all editorials from its Overseas Edition. The Chicago Tribune will start an Overseas Edition shortly, but will keep its editorials intact.

The champagne-and-lobster diner at the Stork Club the other night was Governor Bricker of Ohio . . . Stanton Griffis, who sub-leased his Manhattan apartment to Gloria Vanderbilt di Cicco, nevertheless was host at a big party there last week in honor of his son's marriage. When Griffis leased his apartment to Mrs. di Cicco he exacted a clause giving him the right to hold one party there—and this was it . . . Three years ago Irv Brecher, the MGM comedy writer, wrote a radio serial, "The Life of Riley," for Groucho Marx. It never materialized. Brecher rewrote it for William Bendix and the American Meat Packing Association will sponsor it.

Laurence Olivier wants to produce a dramatization of Richard Sherman's story, "London Life," with Vivien Leigh in the starring role . . . Lillian Hellman, whose last two plays were "The Little Foxes" and "Watch on the Rhine," has torn up her new play, which was two-thirds completed. She's eliminated two characters and has begun anew . . . Gertrude Lawrence's variety program will be switched to 30-minute dramatization. Miss Lawrence will do straight plays with Hollywood visitors as guest stars.

Fred Allen, who returned to radio Sunday night, still doesn't visit night clubs. Once he was asked: "Why aren't you seen in any night spots? Why don't you go to the clubs and enjoy yourself? Allen replied: "Its like this—I'd much rather spend an evening with Shakespeare than with N. T. G." . . . Freddie Martin has recorded the Chopin theme used in the new United Artist hit, "Voice In the Wind." It will be released under that title . . . Robert Nathan, who headed the Planning Division of the War Production Board, will call his new book "Mobilizing for Abundance." It's about postwar programs, subtitled "Let Freedom Bring."

Walter Wanger's trip to New York is for the creation of a Hollywood service group in which the screen talent will help the various worthwhile organizations mobilized for a quicker victory and a better peace.

Manning the 'Lifeboat'!

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 15.—Henry Hull, when he finished "Lifeboat," was so impressed with Alfred Hitchcock and all the crew that he waxed lyrical about them in a long farewell letter:

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

"My Dear Hitch: As the elder member of your erstwhile crew I deem it an honor to have been asked to say a few well chosen words of farewell. All of us in our small way give thanks to the great, generous gestures of our employers . . . Our little Mary didn't stay with us long. A wave swept her out to sea, where for four long months she paddled bravely but feebly against the slings and arrows of an outrageous fortune. And if she hasn't grown gray in your service, she's at least found herself an adult under the blaze of your tender but somewhat Rabelaisian solicitude . . . Next we see Hume Cronyn. We call him Hume the Humane . . . Bill Bendix remains the same today as when he came aboard 'Lifeboat' so long ago . . . Canada, our somewhat puzzled mess sergeant, during his stay has learned a Psalm, and like David, he can chant it the next time he goes into battle . . . John Hodiak was a good man, but he had his little ways, and sometimes people picked on him for days and days. John has definitely progressed . . . Little Angel of the Heather was not with us long enough to be much affected by her contaminating association with the forecastle. She dwelt among us for a brief spell, then departed, leaving behind a lingering fragrance of English gardens after rain.

"Now we come to Tallulah, a lady whose brusqueness of manner is exceeded only by the warmth of her heart—Tallulah, victorious veteran of numberless encounters with Thespis, Venus, Vulcan, Neptune, and lesser gods. Tallulah alone of all of us survived 'Lifeboat,' still the master of her fate and the captain of her soul. She also survived bronchitis, laryngitis, pneumonia, and housemaid's knee. Her only regret was that she was unable to direct the picture, write it, light it, photograph it, edit, and handle the prop department, in addition to acting all the parts. I feel sure that when Charon takes her for her last long voyage home, sh'll be heard to remark, "What a hell of a way to row a boat!" . . . As for myself, I can only repeat, I'm too damned old for this kind of nonsense.

"And now, O captain, I come at last to you, the master of 'Lifeboat.' A man who is at once a nature myth and a sybarite, poet and peasant, prince and pauper, warm, generous, with comprehensive human understanding. A prince of patience, and pauper in his utter lack of any petty thought or mean impulse. Hitch, we love you, and want you to accept this gift as a meager token of our appreciation."

And to cap it all, as Hitch opened the chest of silver which the cast presented to him, he gazed at it a moment, then turned to the mob and observed with a pleased little smile, "O, look! Knives and forks!"

Just One Example

The VACS received a wire from Capt. W. H. Mead, head of the Pasadena Area Hospital, wishing them success at their benefit opening of "Madame Curie." Last time they went over there to visit the boys Captain Mead said there was one boy, in a room by himself, they couldn't talk to—he'd lost both legs and was very depressed. Heather Angel begged to go in alone. She did, told him about a friend of hers who had lost his leg and, in spite of that, had made a great success out of life. Captain Mead's message added that since her visit there had been a miraculous change in the boy's outlook and definite improvement, and he can't speak too highly of the work the VACS are doing.

Off to a Good Start

"Jackpot," staring Allan Jones and Jerry Lester, looked like a hit on its out-of-town opening, and a bid for the picture rights has already reached Vinton Freedley . . . The service lads at New York's Stage Door Canteen wonder when Katharine Hepburn will finish "Dragon Seed." They're anxious to see her back there . . . Don't miss the new "Meet the People" show. These kids are bursting with pep and talent, and not hard to look at. They've got a couple of comics there that are good for what ails you. Marilynn Hare, Judy Clark and Roland Dupree, with that cute little chocolate drop, Ida James, could just transfer their stuff right onto the screen.

Cafes Afraid OPA Has Plan To Cut Points

Washington restaurant owners will seek clarification from the Office of Price Administration of a questionnaire which, they say, may be the basis for a slash of their food rations.

The questionnaire has been sent out to all "institutional food users" and asks information about the number of customers in January and February, stipulating that food and drink customers must be separated.

Since present rations are based on the total number of customers, it was presumed by operators that the OPA intends to reduce points in some cases.

Robert J. Wilson, secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, said yesterday that a meeting of the association would be held within a few days to enable a representative of the OPA to explain the questionnaire.

"Restaurants are already short on points," Wilson declared, "and I don't see how they are going to stay in business if their allotments are reduced."

Flu Kills 2000 in Berlin

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—The British radio broadcast today a Stockholm report that influenza killed 2000 persons in Berlin last week.

Pvt. Carson Killed in Action

Pvt. Carl Carson, son of Mrs. Mary Carson of 1222 31st st. nw., has been killed in action in Italy, the War Department announced yesterday.

CARL CARSON

The 20-year-old Field Artillery soldier, who had been overseas three months and in the Army since February, was killed on November 9 after two months of active fighting.

A native of the District, he attended Corcoran graded school and graduated from Gordon Junior High, where he excelled in sports. He was employed by the International Business Machine Corp. at the time he entered the Army. Trained at Fort Sill, Okla., he had received three medals for marksmanship at the time he went overseas.

In a recent letter to his mother, he had requested a watch for Christmas. This present and four other boxes had been mailed just before the Army telegram arrived notifying her of his death.

Surviving in addition to his mother, are a brother, Pvt. William T. Carson, stationed at Camp Hodo, Tex., and a sister, Mrs. Earl Martin, of Washington.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The Associated Press is asking questions, again thank Heaven, so today's composition in this space is just a breeze for this department.

At this time of the year the AP polls us guys to arrive at a symposium of opinion on sports developments for the calendar year, and with the grubbing tough as it is, we are grateful for any topic.

POVICH

Here's what the AP wants to know:

One—Who was the outstanding male athlete of the year, amateur or professional? (name three in the order of preference).

Well, we think it could have been Spud Chandler who won those 20 games for the Yankees and beat the Cardinals twice in the World Series; or maybe it was Sammy Baugh, whose passing and kicking put the Redskins in a position to win the pro football title; yet again it may have been Don Hutson, of the Packers, who caught more touchdown passes than anybody else despite the loss of his passing partner, Cecil Isbell. How about Dick Wakefield, the Tigers' rookie who hit .328 in his first year and barely lost the batting title?

Or perhaps the outstanding male athlete was Gundar Hagg who shed his sea legs and beat America's best on a triumphant track tour in thrilling times; and there was Angelo Bertelli, who made Notre Dame's football team go.

Anyway, here's the way we rate them: Hagg, Hutson and Chandler.

Two—Who was the leading woman athlete of the year? (name three in order of preference).

That one stumps us. We pass.

Three—What was the outstanding team, amateur or professional? (name three).

Here again, you think of the Yankees, who lost such ball players as Joe Di Maggo, Charley Ruffing, Phil Rizzuto and Tommy Henrich to the armed services, and still won the American League pennant in a breeze. And there was that Notre Dame team that didn't lose a ball game until the last day of the season.

Speaking of Notre Dame, how about the Great Lakes team that eventually bumped the Irish off? Here, now is the way we like 'em in answer to question No. 3—The Yankees, Notre Dame and Great Lakes.

Four—What was the outstanding comeback of the year, amateur or professional (name three).

Right off the bat we pick the New York Giants' football team for that one. Beaten, 56 to 7, by the Bears their only chance to stay in the Eastern Division race was to beat the Redskins twice in a row, and they were asked to beat a team that had beaten the Bears. And they did it. No matter what happens in Sunday's Giants-Redskins play-off, the Giants are the comeback team of the year.

As for other comebacks, we'll take that Navy football team, which bounced back from its 33-6 defeat by Notre Dame to slaughter Penn's good team and then go on to a one-sided victory over an Army eleven that had lost only to Notre Dame. For our third comeback, we'll take Luke Appling who batted .262 in 1942 after 10 years as a .300 hitter in the American League and last season bounced back to win the batting championship with a gaudy .333 average.

Five—What was the biggest sports surprise of the year, team or individual? (name three).

We'd say the biggest sports surprise of the year was provided by the Phillies, who drew more attendance in the first half of the 1943 season than they did throughout 1942. In fact, you can blanket the biggest surprises of the year in the name of the Phillies, when you consider that Bucky Harris the man who had 'em there in the first division for a time was fired in July by President Wiliam D. Cox, who in turn was fired in November by Judge Landis for betting on ball games.

If you don't like those for surprises, how about Notre Dame's defeat by Great Lakes, and that day in Milwaukee when an underdog Redskin team slapped down the Green Bay Packers, 33 to 7.

Six—Who or what was the biggest disappointment of the year, team or individual? (name three).

At this point we'd say the biggest disappointment was the Redskins who had the Eastern pro title locked up and then lost three games in a row after being favorites in all of them. And there was the horse named Alsab, the winner colt of 1942, that was beaten in $2,500 races this year. And Joe Gordon, the American League's most valuable player of 1942, who slumped to a .249 batting average with the Yankees.

Seven—What was the oddest happening in sports during the season, any sport?

For that one we'll take what happened to Clint Wager, the big end of the Chicago Cardinals, who was practicing drop kicks one afternoon. As Wager started to kick the ball, somebody called his named and he turned his head. Result: fractured skull, as his own knee conked him.

'Johnny Zero' of Goalies

Frankie Brimsek, crack goalie of the Curtis Bay Coast Guard Cutters ice hockey sextet, has been nicknamed "Johnny Zero" by his mates for the obvious reason that "zero" is the usual allotment of scores Frankie permits per game. A star with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League several years ago, Frankie and his mates will be seen in action tomorrow night at Uline Arena, when the Cutters face the crack H. M. S. York All-Stars, a top-notch Canadian six composed of former big-league ice stars.

Ex-Big League Ice Stars Clash Here Tomorrow Night

No fewer than ten former National Hockey League stars will claim the spotlight at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow when ice hockey returns to Uline Arena.

In a match of international flavor involving star-studded clubs, the United States Coast Guard Cutters of Curtis Bay, Md., meet His Majesty's Canadian Ship York All-Stars, hailed as one of the Dominion's fastest and flashiest teams.

Outstanding among the Cutters will be Frankie Brimsek, "Johnny Zero" of goal tenders, who was No. 1 net guardian of the National League while with the Bruins two years ago. The former shutout king of the big time remains equally as brilliant in the service.

Three powerful defensemen averaging over 200 pounds who will afford Brimsek protection are; Johnny Mariucci, 240 pounds, formerly of the Chicago Blackhawks; Art Coulter, 200 pounds, New York Rangers, and Alex Motter, Detroit Red Wings, 185 pounds.

Ossie Asmundsen, formerly of the New York Rangers, Detroit Red Wings and Les Canadiens and last season with the Washington Lions, will represent the Cutters at a wing.

Other invading York stars with big League experience are: Norm Tustin, Norm Burns and Red Garrett New York Rangers, and Joe Klukay and Normie Mann, Toronto Maple Leafs.

These ten former National League stars will be supplemented by other outstanding professional and amateur satelites.

'Skins Leave Today for Westchester

The Redskins had to hustle or freeze yesterday, and they preferred to hustle as Coach Dutch Bergman staged a 90-minute workout in Griffith Stadium with the temperautre hanging around 16 degrees.

"Great workout," Dutch said, "great workout, we really accomplished something today." But Dutch didn't have much to say about the pictures of last Sunday's 31-7 loss to the New York Giants which were shown prior to the workout.

A short session is scheduled at the stadium this morning and the squad will leave for Rye, N. Y., at 1:55 p. m. The team will stay at the Westchester Country Club until Sunday morning.

In New York the Giants' office was confronted with the greatest ticket demand in the history of the club. Requests from season ticket holders were handled at the seventeenth-floor office of the Giants at 11 West 42d st. and a second ticket office was opened on the second floor to relieve elevator congestion. A sellout crowd of 60,000 is virtually assured.

The Giants will work lightly this week, according to Coach Steve Owen, merely brushing up on offensive and checking defensive formations.

The Redskin office reported a sellout of the few hundred game tickets received.

Phil-Pitts, Bears Win Pro Honors

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Chicago Bears, who won the Western Division championship, and the Phil-Pitt Eagles, who missed out on a one-third share of the Eastern crown by an eyelash, walked off with every major offensive and defensive honor in the National Football League this season, the final statistics showed today.

The Bears chalked up these "firsts":

Total offense (yards by rushing and passing), 404.5 yards a game.

Passing offense, 239.4 yards a game.

Total defense (yards to which opponents were held by rushing and passing), 226.2 yards a game.

Passing defense, opponents limited to 98 yards a game.

And these were the Phil-Pitt team's laurels:

Rushing defense, opponents limited to 79.3 yards a game.

Rushing offense, 173 yards a game.

Trail in Rushing

The Chicagoans, who will play in the National League's championship game here December 26 against the winner of next Sunday's Eastern playoff between the Washington Redskins and New York Giants, took second place in the only offensive department in which they failed to cop first honors, averaging 165.1 yards rushing or about 9 yards less a game than Phil-Pitt.

But they wound up a poor fifth in rushing defense, New York grabbing second with 100.6 yards allowed each foe on the ground, and Green Bay, the Chicago Cardinals and Detroit beating out the Bears.

The Green Bay Packers trailed the Chicagoans across the finish line in total defense, with 335.1 yards a game, and in passing offense with 190.9 yards a contest.

Baugh Leads 'Skins

The defending champion Washington team was not out in the cold, however, for Sammy Baugh passed the Redskins to a new league record in aerial efficiency of 139 completions in 254 attempts, an average of .547 successful throws. This mark will stand as it now reads, for Sunday's playoff statistics will not count in the season figures.

The final team marks:

Total yards gained per game—Chicago Bears, 404.5; Green Bay Packers, 335.1.

Yards rushing per game—Phil-Pitt, 173; Chicago Bears, 165.1.

Yards passing per game—Chicago Bears, 239.4; Green Bay Packers, 190.9.

Per cent of passing completed—Washington, .547; Chicago Bears, .511.

Opponents' yards per game—Chicago Bears, 226.2; Phil-Pitt, 230.1.

Opponents' yards by rushing per game—Phil-Pitt, 79.3; New York Giants, 100.6.

Opponents' yards by passing per game—Phil-Pitt, 79.3; New York Giants, 100.6.

Opponents' yards by passing per game—Chicago Bears, 98; Washington, 102.6.

Punting average—Washington, 43.1 yards; Detroit, 41.5 yards.

Baugh Only Triple-Leader In Pro League Statistics

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The National Football League statistics Bureau released the final figures for the 1943 season yesterday and the only undisputed triple-champion was Redskin Sammy Baugh, forward passing leader with 23 more completions than Sid Luckman, far-and-away the outstanding punter with a 45.9 average and a new league record holder in pass interceptions with 11.

Baugh won the passing championship for the third time and retained his place as top man among the kickers.

Sunday's playoff game between the Redskins and New York Giants at the Polo Grounds will not count in the season's records.

Packer Don Hutson, who has announced his retirement for a second time, led in pass receiving and scoring but was tied by Ward Cuff in the field goal department.

Added to Records

Baugh added to his all-time records by averaging 55.7 in passing with 133 completions in 209 attempts for 1754 yards, but in two divisions he trailed Bear Sid Luckman, whose one great day against the Giants helped him to new records of 28 touchdown passes and 2194 yards gained passing for the season. Baugh equaled his worst season in having passes intercepted as the opposition hauled down 19 of Sammy's alants.

Andy Farkas was the only Redskin to earn a place among the leaders in four of the nine statistical departments. Farkas was eighth in ball carrying with 327 yards, tied for fourth in scoring with nine touchdowns for 54 points, ninth in pass receiving with 19 passes for 202 yards and first in punt returns as he ran 15 punts back for an overage of 11 yards each.

The Redskins' "defensive" fullback, Bob Seymour, earned triple mention, although he spent most of his time batting down passes or hauling down ball carriers. Seymour was fourteenth in ball carrying and pass receiving and second in punt returns. Seymour counted 232 yards on the ground, caught 17 passes and his average yardage on punt returns topped Farkas.

Wilbur Moore, who missed one full game, was third in pass receiving and fifteenth in ball carrying and he tied Farkas and Harry Hopp of the Lions, with nine touchdowns for 54 points.

High Among Scorers

Joe Aguirre was Baugh's favorite pass receiver for the season, and only Hutson topped the big Redskin end in the number of passes caught. Aguirre took 37 passes for 420 yards and 7 touchdowns, and was right behind his Redskin teammates in the scoring as he made 6 extra points in 9 attempts. No records are kept, but Aguirre developed into one of the league's best in booting the ball on kickoffs after he worked off the rust from a year's absence.

Bob Masterson, who hobbled on one good leg and one bad one most of the season, barely made the first 15 in the pass-receiving department with 16 passes to his credit but he was high among the point scorers as he scored three touchdowns, added 20 points-after-touchdowns in 21 attempts and booted a field goal, the 'Skins' only three-pointer of the season.

George Cafego was seventh among the exponents of the forward pass, as in seven games with Brooklyn and three with the Redskins he made good 22 times in 45 attempts.

The only league records for the season were Luckman's in passing yardage and touchdowns' passing, Baugh in interceptions and Bob Snyder of the Bears with 39 points after touchdown.

Banner Year Predicted, 9517 Attend

By E. V. W. Jones

Miami, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—A gala throng of 9517, less than a thousand under the track's first day high, clicked the turnstiles for the opening of Tropical Park's horse race meeting today and established a first day pari-mutuel wagering record of $442,830.

The previous winter inaugural betting mark was $276,058, set in 1940, and the attendance record of 10,481 was established December 20, 1941. The new figures inspired Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the Gables Racing Association, to declare "we have no fears as to the season's success."

Surging fans cheered Allen T. Simmons' Harvard Square as he survived a battle for the lead and a stirring finish to capture the first division of the $2500 Inaugural Handicap and pay backers $14.10. Woolford Farm's Pig Tails, the favorite, and J. B. Bartridge's Minee-Mo gave the appearance of a chariot race as they sped beside the winner to finish in that order.

All nine races on the opening card, were run off smoothly and without mishap, inaugurating 100 days of competition here and at Hialeah Park, the longest Florida season by four days. Tropical will operate for 20 days, Hialeah for 50 and horses move back to Tropical for an additional 30 days.

Automobiles brought practically all the first day crowd and Tropical's parking lots were filled nearly to capacity. Office of Price Administration agents kept watch for taxicabs or for hire vehicles, but the pleasure driving ban which caused Tropical to close after 15 days last year no longer applies to private cars.

Gloves Card Lists 21 Bouts For Tomorrow

A marathon program of 21 bouts—15 novice and six senior—await Washingtonians tomorrow night in quarterfinals of the annual Golden Gloves boxing tournament offered at Turner's Arena at 8 o'clock.

Novices and seniors alike will be fighting to gain the semifinals.

Much interest tomorrow night will be centered around the debut of Ray Hanbury, kid brother of the fast rising Lew Hanbury as a senior in the 135-pound class. Ray is to box for the Merrick Club, and has drawn Leonard Zuniga of Fort Meade, as his opponent.

The novice class tomorrow night will be dominated by boys from the National Training School and Merrick Club. No fewer than 11 fisticuffers will fire away from N. T. S. while the Merrick clubmen will headline six entrants.

Yvon Robert Beats 'Mask,' Retains Title

Yvon Robert retained his mythical wrestling championship by pinning the Yellow Mask after 20 minutes of the feature match before a scant crowd at Turner's Arena last night. However, the Canadian had been counted out by Referee Tiny Bouque just a minute before when the champ was pinned by the veiled character. At the time Mr. Mask was topside, however, Robert was half out of the ring so the hooded fellow's "win" didn't count.

The brawl was rough all the way and the Yellow Mask was villainous from the opening whistle when he stormed across the ring and felled Robert with a swipe of his fist. He followed this up with a deal of goughing, strangling and kicking which had the sports-lovers crazy. Robert, however, adequately defended himself with some clever wrestling plus some very choice slugging.

Jack Wentworth and Maurice La Chappelle worked to a clean, scientific draw in the cofeature which drew a round of applause from the fans.

Dick Bishop, a Canadian newcomer sporting a red walrus moustache, won the card's stormiest session by default from Michele Leone after 17 minutes. Leone was chased out for strangling his opponent with a towel, a maneuver which both men used. Michele was reamed all the way for some sportsman deluged him twice with cups of pop. Still another sportsman pushed a lighted cigar in his face. Fortunately, police protected the fan's constitutional rights.

Mike Demetre defeated John Vanski with a Boston split in 24, and Jimmy Britt took the opener from Bamba Tabu.-OSCAR ELDER.

Bullis Bows To Coolidge

Coolidge High quint, reckoned as one of the threats for the Interhigh basketball championship, yesterday was forced to go all out to turn back Bullis Prep, 40-34, in Coolidge gym, in the opening game for both teams.

The Preppers, who played with only one day of practice, kept pace with the Presidents until the final two minutes when, with the score tied at 34 all, Charley Greenbaum connected for two and Lafferty hit the rim for a third basket to clinch the triumph. The Prepmen rallied after a ragged first half to deadlock the game after trailing 12-11 at halftime.

Landis Suspends Lou Novikoff

Los Angeles, Dec. 15 (AP).—Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis has suspended Lou Novikoff, Chicago Cubs outfielder, for failure to answer a questionnaire about his winter baseball playing in Southern California.

Novikoff is the only one of 20 or more major leaguers participating in winter games to be suspended, Los Angeles baseball club officials said they learned.

Tee Hubert Matched With Gene Buffalo

Tee Hubert, former Georgia boy who has won nine straight matches and has yet to taste defeat in Washington rings, will fight Gene Buffalo, erstwhile Philadelphian now making his home here in one of the feature bouts on next Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez signed the two middleweights yesterday for an eight-round bout.

Hubert holds the middleweight championship of the District, having won it from John Garner. Before stopping Garner, Hubert scored impressively over Stoney Lewis.

Buffalo needs little introduction to Washington fight fans. A headliner in Philadelphia and Baltimore rings, Buffalo appeared here last against Phil Furr several years ago when he handed Furr a first-class lacing at the arena.

Matchmaker Menendez announced he will line-up two more eight-rounders.

Ahearn Signs Mauriello to Box Marshall

Promoter Goldie Ahearn last night announced the Liberty Athletic Club is offering a special Yuletide boxing card at Uline Arena, Monday, December 27, when Tami Mauriello, New York's high ranking heavyweight, boxes Herbert Marshall, Brooklyn Negro, in a 10-round main event.

Mauriello has been one of the big names of the boxing game within the past two years, and has met and defeated the best. One of his more important recent bouts resulted in a decision over Lee Savold at a time Savold was being hailed as king-pin of the big fellows.

Marshall was defeated by Joe Baksi his last time out locally.

Mauriello Wins

St. Louis, Dec. 15 (AP).—Tami Mauriello, New York's young contender for the duration heavyweight title, stopped Mike Alfano of Newark in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round fight tonight.

Hopkins Bows To Gallaudet

Baltimore, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Johns Hopkins basketball quintet came to a cropper in its first start of the season as the Mason-Dixon Conference Champions of Gallaudet easily defeated the Mays, 43 to 28, at Homewood tonight.

The Blue Bisons from Washington repeatedly stole the ball from Hopkins players, who lacked fire and dash until the last seven minutes of play, when Jay second-stringers took the floor and made a belated bid for something like a close score.

Baldridge, Gallaudet team captain, was the outstanding athlete on the court and was top scorer with 15 points.

Central High opened its basketball season yesterday with a 32-21 decision over Mount Rainier at Central High gym with Forward Panturas and Center Sussman leading the way with eight points each.

The Vikings were slow to get started and gradually worked their way to an 18-12 margin at halftime. Loomis and Kanhbaugh led the way for the Suburbanites with six points each.

Nyleve Wins Charles Town Feature by Neck

Wise Timmie Second in Field of 8

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 15.—Nyleve, making his 40th start of the year, carried the colors of Mrs. Evelyn Smith of Baltimore to victory in the Blue Ridge Purse, featuring the midweek program here. Jockey Sammy Palumbo booted the son of Ned Reigh home a neck in front of Dr. G. T. Strother's Wise Timmie, the odds-on favorite in the field of eight going a mile and a sixteenth. J. P. Harris' Busy Man was third.

Exceedingly cold weather held down the crowd, but betting was brisk. The crowd installed Wise Timmie, Carson Kirk's mount, as the heavy-money horse and then stayed to watch Nyleve get up in the final strides. The winner was clocked in 1:46 4/5.

Always Within Distance

Palumbo always had Nyleve within striking distance. Wise Timmie was hard used racing with Busy Man. In the stretch, Busy Man faltered and Wise Timmie did not have enough left to stave off the final bid of Nyleve. Nyleve paid $7.20.

The program began with a distinct Jockey Carson Kirk flavor. The Silver Spring boy, leading rider at the meeting, piloted both ends of the $15.20 daily double. In the second event he brought Mrs. Thomas Bonham's First Family home an easy winner to put the finishing touches on the twin wager. He had won the day's opener with Mrs. M. E. (Liz) Whitney's Royal Step, a $7.40 shot.

A three-way photo finish marked the third race, the Ralph Murdock Purse. Mrs. Arthur White's Milk Chocolate made it four victories in five tries, taking a nose verdict over Harry Kumpy's Fly Gent with O. Bagley's Sunarian third. Milk Chocolate paid $5.20.

The Art Brown Purse, located fourth on the card, proved a romp for Mrs. George Fox's Janegri, ridden by Jockey Danny Scocca of Washington. Janegri paid $3.20.

Notes—Jockey Woodrow Kirk, oldest of the riding Kirks, has been turned down for the Army . . . Jockey Joe DeLucia, who operates a wholesale poultry business in Newark, N. J., will pass up winter racing to work in his plant . . . Alan T. Clarke, whose Huntington Farm is one of the most popular wintering spots in Maryland, will keep 51 thoroughbreds during the cold months . . . Trainer J. Gorga shipped Try Flying, useful sprinter, to Florida . . . The track is still fast here, marking the first time that the oval hasn't been off at a winter session here . . . W. N. Miller purchased Golden Lass, 6-year-old chestnut mare, from O. B. Wearley . . . D. Foster has turned over Molasses Betts to train after buying the mare from Mrs. F. G. Simms . . . Miami Open Entries Now Top Hundred Mark

By Bert Collier

Miami, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP).—Late entries sent the field for the $5000 Miami Open Golf Tournament over the hundred mark on the eve of the first round today, and Chairman H. H. Arnold struck the keynote for the war-time event with the observation:

"Usually you can pick out five names and know you've got the winner among them. This year—well, here's the list. You can take your choice."

War and transportation difficulties eliminated most of the outstanding players, he pointed out, but the situation enhanced the chances of the in-and-outers.

Sam Byrd Working Hard

The players' choice, Sammy Byrd of Detroit, was the hardest working golfer on the course as he struggled earnestly in practice to get his chipper into working order for the four rounds of money play.

He was anxious to vindicate the judgment of fellow professionals who gave him a slight edge over National Open Champion Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Bob Hamilton, putting expert, of Evansville, Ind.

"It's a special trick to make the ball stick on the small greens at the Miami Springs course," Byrd explained. "And that's going to tell the story."

Byrd, the former major league baseball player, has three reasons for wanting to win the tournament—he needs the $1000 first money, he is 1-A in the draft and may not get to play again for the duration, and has tried three times in the Miami Open without winning more than $25 on any occasion.

Sarazen Back Again

Gene Sarazen and Willie MacFarlane, former National Open champions, represent the old guard in the starting field, while Ensign Willie Turnesa, former United States Amateur titleholder, is the hope of the play-for-fun crew.

Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, a former touring professional who is playing here during a vacation from his duties as a pilot for Eastern Air Lines, laughed over his inclusion by some pickers among the 10 players most likely to win.

Kope Kona First Derby Nominee

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 15 (AP).—The first nomination for the 1944 running of the Kentucky Derby on May 6 was received today from Miss Ruth W. Collins of Honolulu.

Col. Matt J. Winn, director of the Churchill Downs classic, announced receipt of Miss Collins' subscription for Kope Kona today.

He added that her hopeful and four other horses are on the first leg of their 4863-mile journey and are expected to reach the Downs about January 1.

The early entry came as a surprise, since nomination blanks are not printed until late in January and the deadline usually is in February.

Layden Has Flu

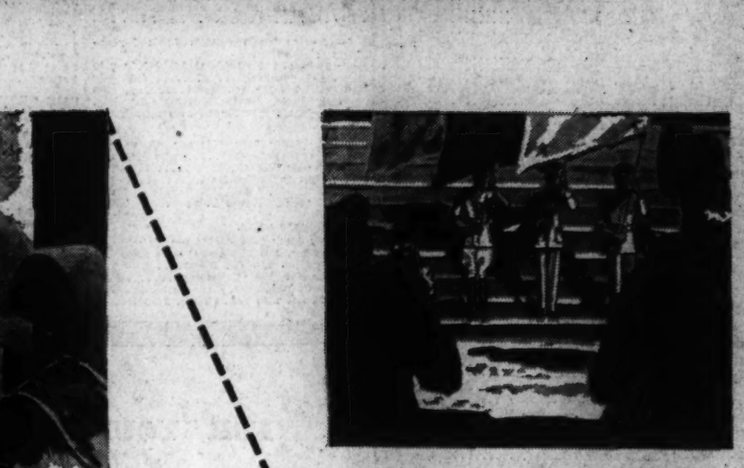
NBC TELEVISION BRINGS TEHERAN CONFERENCE TO THOUSANDS



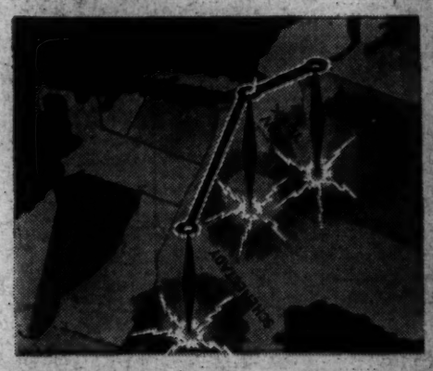
1 TEHERAN. Allied leaders gather for one of the most world-stirring conferences in all of mankind's history. Here newsreel cameras grind, capturing dramatic sights and sounds to be rushed by special plane to the U.S.A.

2 THE PLANE ROARS OFF. Films aboard, a big U. S. Army plane starts on its secret course toward the Atlantic Ocean and America's distant shores.

3 HIGH ABOVE THE ATLANTIC, the plane races against time across thousands of miles of open ocean. Then—America below! And swooping to earth it is met by special messengers who rush the films to NBC Television Studios in New York City.

TELEVISION NETWORK DEMONSTRATES in thousands of homes HOW MILLIONS WILL SEE WORLD EVENTS!

4 READY FOR ACTION. All is speed here in the television studios as films are made ready—the final step before RCA television equipment in the NBC studios will send them out to waiting audiences.



5 SEEN IN 4 STATES AT THE SAME TIME. As scenes of the Teheran Conference streamed out to people in Metropolitan New York, New Jersey and Connecticut from the television tower atop the Empire State Building, they also went by relay to Philadelphia. NBC Television programs also are regularly rebroadcast from Schenectady, thus forming "network" television as it will some day span whole continents and circle the globe.

6 TO THE SMITHS AT HOME. What the Smiths and the Joneses and thousands of others saw was more than just a telecast of a major news event. They were also seeing a demonstration of what television will some day bring even faster, and to many more people, when television comes into its full flowering after the war.

YES, it happened in four states—Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania! From comfortable armchairs, right at home people in those four states simultaneously witnessed the stirring scenes of the Teheran Conference. They saw the world's greatest statesmen, the President of the United States, the Prime Minister of England and the Russian Premier, parade before their eyes—a few hours after the films' official release. This was television in action today!

How it was done

In far-off Iran, newsreels captured the exciting scenes as fast as they happened. With the cooperation of the U. S. Army Air Corps, a big four-motored plane sped the films to America—to NBC's television studios, where the pictures were put on the air via the NBC television transmitter on top of the Empire State Building, for television set owners in the state of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. These same pictures, via the air waves, were picked up for re-broadcast by the Philco television transmitter in Philadelphia, for the audience in that area.

Here was one of the most forceful demonstrations yet of what television will mean to all of us in the years ahead. But there will be this difference. Then you will not have to wait a day, or even a minute to see great events from your armchair as they occur. Events in far-off places, first in America, and some day around the world, will be seen in your home not an hour or a minute later but while they are happening.

When this war is won, the Radio Corporation of America will be in the forefront of those working to give you this "instantaneous" television picture of world events. Right now the day is being postponed because of the war. But all of us here at home can help speed its coming by staying on our job, by buying War Bonds, by giving "our best" in whatever way we work for the war.

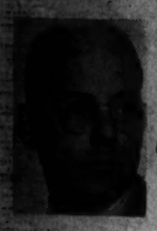
WPB Proves Economy Works in Wartime

Efficiency and economy can happen in wartime government. War Production Board has proved it, and has proved it in telling fashion.



The board's accomplishments within the past year is something for all agencies to shoot for; it's something that brings about better Government. Remember, now, a few months back when all the screwball things happened at WPB; where officials would demand plush rugs; no one knew how many employes were in the agency and what they were doing; and where money was being spent for many unauthorized activities. It's not true today.

As late as February officials estimated it would require 32,000 employes to run the agency this year. Congress approved funds for 19,500 and the agency built up to 22,000 in March. Since that time 5500 employes have been dropped and the overall total today is about 16,000. Employment in Washington has dropped from a high of 18,200 to 10,500 and the field staff has been built up to 6268 through the decentralization program. And the boiling down process is still in operation and further reductions are in the mill.

On the budget side, WPB was given 90 million dollars by Congress and in the six-month period that'll end on December 31, it will have saved more than 5 million dollars out of which will be paid overtime to employes. It had been intended to ask Congress for an additional sum to foot the overtime bill. About 25 per cent will have been saved from the 17 million dollars service appropriation such as printing, travel, communications and the like. The cost of long-distance calls, for example, has been cut from an anticipated $80-per-employe to $72-per-employe. Phone costs generally have been whittled, as more than 1000 extensions have been ripped out and a number of "limited service" phones have been installed to prevent outside calls. Officials who do use long-distance phones are reminded to make their conversations short by the three-minute hour glasses on their desks and several have bene fired for making personal calls at Government expense.

A photo-offset printing shop has been set up within the agency that's capable of turning out 10 million pieces within a single night. This operation has saved thousands of dollars and the speed by which it's done makes the office far more efficient. All affected business organizations and Federal offices are now assured of getting orders on the same day. It prevents anyone from getting an advance tip-off. Givernment Printing Office still must do about half of WPB's work that cann't be standardized. GPO helped WPB set up the more economical photo-offset operation. A single merger of five publications saved tons of paper and $100,000 a year.

WPB has given up eight of the buildings it was occupying earlier in the year, and now its activities are scattered in a dozen structures, but it'll soon give up two more. It has turned back in recent months more than 2400 desks, 1000 typewriters and hundreds of other machines. The agency now has 23 autos. It formerly had 26. Telegrams have been cut down from 35,000 to 27,000 a week. That's going and coming. The outgoing have been cut deeply by the rapid printing process. Mail has dropped from 500,000 to 400,000 pieces a week. The visitor control system has kept an estimated 8000 people a week from going into WPB offices and the employes can get more work done.

All this just didn't happen. Top WPB officials credit five key officials with the healthy transformation. They are Bernard Gladieux, executive assistant to Donald Nelson; Carlton Hayward, the personnel director, who has brought about better utilization of personnel and who has set a good example by cutting his own staff more than 50 per cent; Frank Cawley, the budget officer, who has engineered most of the savings in services and personnel; William Murphy, director of the division of administrative services, who has cut his own staff from 2543 on March 1 to 1203 and who has brought about the savings in space and equipment, and Lyle Cross, organization and planning chief, who worked out the decentralization and other reorganizations. These key people have a constant control over expenditures. Each office is alloted so much money on a quarterly basis and by the 10th of each month statements are handed out so everyone knows where he stands. Every time any office goes over his allotment in personnel, money for printing, travel, or anything else the staff is on their neck and Nelson backs them up.

Kenneth O. Warner is resigning as personnel director of Office of Price Administration to become assistant administrator in charge of personnel for Foreign Economic Administration. . . . The Senate Civil Service Committee couldn't get a quorum yesterday so no meeting was held officially. However, Chairman Downey ordered the committee polled on the Aiken bill which would permit retirement after 30 years' service regardless of age. The bill is slated to be reported favorably. . . . Former Representative W. L. Nelson of Missouri has resigned from War Foods. He was in charge of its war boards.

Court Holds Price Freeze Is Legal

The Emergency Court of Appeals declared yesterday that the general maximum price regulation of April 28, 1942, which froze the prices of commodities generally, is constitutional, and dismissed suits brought by the major independent producers of coke gas against the Office of Price Administration.

The court said the war powers of the President encompassed the price freeze because when it was issued, the inflationary movement had so permeated the price structure that all further price increases in all commodities would have had an inflationary effect.

The opinion said the facts "disclose a situation which justified the (OPA) administrator, under the authority conferred on him by the act, in imposing a general over-all ceiling upon commodities, including those whose prices had not risen or given evidence of a threat of an imminent rise. The extent of the inflationary pressure exerted by a pool of excess purchasing power as large as 17 billion dollars in a single year staggers the imagination. Its existence presented in 1942 and still presents a frightful peril to the Nation. Certainly the existence of this tremendous pressure justified the conclusion of the administrator that the whole price structure was threatened with inflationary increases."

The decision of the court is bound to affect disposition of several other suits based on similar grounds, including one brought by the largest vitamin producers of the Nation.

Theo pinion was written by Chief Justice Albert Maris and concurred in by Justice Calvert Magruder. A separate opinion, agreeing with Maris, was written by Justice Bolitha J. Laws.

Mystery Deepens

Kent Sold Some Gems, Court Told

The mystery of the $61,000 worth rare antique jewels stolen from Otis Beal Kent, wealthy retired lawyer, was complicated further yesterday in the District Court trial of Mrs. Frances Dolmage, accused of the theft, when the defense produced a well thumbed yellow memorandum which indicated some of the gems may have been sold.

Kent emphatically denied selling any of the jewels, which he said were to be given to the National Museum as a memorial to his mother.

Mrs. Dolmage is the wife of Dr. M. M. Dolmage, a dentist prominent in religious circles here. He sat beside her at the bar during the first day of the trial yesterday.

Kent said the collection, which was in a black suitcase, disappeared from his apartment at 1026 16th st. nw. in July while he was out of town.

In his opening address, Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius said the Kent apartment was entered by a key Mrs. Dolmage had, and that she was seen leaving the apartment house with a black suitcase like that in which the jewels were kept.

In taking the witness stand as the chief complainant, Kent said only Mrs. Dolmage, who he has known for 16 years, had a key to the apartment.

Defense Attorney Robert H. McNeal was denied a motion for a dismissal of the case by Justice Matthew F. McGuire. McNeal said he would show the Dolmage family and Kent had been friends for years, but after a "breach" in their relations, Kent changed the lock to his apartment. He said that at the time of the theft, Mrs. Dolmage was working in the Investment building.

When McNeal produced the yellow memorandum, Kent said he couldn't understand how the defense attorney had obtained it. Kent said he had listed the jewels on the memorandum but had not written that he had sold any of the jewels.

$1500 Gem Loss Leads Thefts Here

Variety has been the keynote in the property taken by thieves during the last few days.

Heading the list was a $1500 diamond ring reported stolen by Mrs. Arabel Cox, wife of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, former director of the District Selective Service and at one time head of the District National Guard.

Reports of money thefts were made by Agnes Rich who told police a savings bank containing $350 in cash was taken from her bedroom in the residence at 2521 F st. nw., and by Thomas A. Babbington, 2702 Wisconsin ave. now., who said thieves took $50 in cash from his apartment.

Perhaps the cruelest theft of all was that reported by Lloyd E. Lolovely of 201 F st. nw. Someone made off with his overcoat, hat and a pair of gloves while he was in a restaurant at North Capitol and H sts. nw.

Sharing at Christmas Arranged

GOOD WILL SEASON—Assignments for the "Share Your Home at Christmas" projects were made yesterday by (front), left to right: Misses Enid Moses, Laura Nicholson and Evelyn Mills; standing are Miss Olinda Roettger, Donald D. Bautz, Federation of Churches' defense commissioner, and Miss Jean Christenson. The group met in St. John's Parish Hall, near 16th and H sts. nw.

By Robert Tate Allan

Lenore Haag, president of the Government Girls Club and a member of the White House secretariat, yesterday urged war workers and servicewomen to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the "Share Your Home at Christmas" project.

Mrs. Haag, in praising the project, recalled that when she was president of the YWCA at 17th and K sts. nw., some kind Washingtonians invited her and other girls into their homes for Thanksgiving dinner. The hosts, she said, got as much happiness from the idea as the guests.

First assignments of hosts and guests in the project were made at a meeting yesterday at the offices of the coordinating council on home hospitality in St. John's Parish Hall, 16th and H sts. nw.

Attending the session were Donald F. Bautz, director of the Federation of Churches Defense Commission; Miss Laura Nicholson, chairman of the coordinating council on home hospitality; Miss Enid Moses, her assistant; Miss Olinda Roettger, Miss Evelyn Mills and Miss Jean Christenson, denominational workers carrying on spiritual and social work among war workers and servicewomen.

Cold, Ain't It?

Mercury Slated to Hit 10-15 Today

Metropolitan Washington will register temperatures of 10 to 15 above zero early today, the Weather Bureau said yesterday. Followed by a low of 16 at 10 a. m., the mercury held to slightly above 20 yesterday afternoon after a stiff wind subsided.

Claude J. Humphries, Negro, 42, of 2606 Nichols ave., was found in a semi-stupor ,induced by cold, at 6:35 a. m. in the street at Nichols ave. and Howard rd. se. Gallinger Hospital announced he suffered from frost bite. His condition was undetermined.

Flanked in Maryland and northern Virginia with a blanket of low temperatures that reached down to 7 below at Big Savage Mountain, just west of Cumberland, and an unusual low of 21.6 at Richmond, 10 at Martinsburg, W. Va.; 7.5 at Charleston; 3 at Elkins, 5 at Fairmont, yesterday, Washington was scheduled to be enveloped in the cold wave proper early today. The prediction was fair and slightly warmer later in the day, however. Snow was not anticipated.

A decrease in humidity also was recorded at 53 at 8:30 a. m. and registered only 29 at 2:30 p. m. The dryer the air, the less one feels either cold or heat, Weather Bureau officials said.

Baltimore registered 5 above in its outskirts and 7 in the downtown areas with city officials conducting a survey to determine if schools should be closed.

District police at No. 2 Precinct, at New York ave. and 5th st. nw., injected a note of humor in weather discussions yesterday at four. They said "for the first time in more than ten years all the cell blocks are unoccupied." Asked by headquarters to what they attributed it the answer came back over the wire:

"Its too cold for our usual clients to go out—and get in trouble."

Victory Sidelights

Servicemen's Hostesses Get USO Pins

Twenty-five hosts and 925 junior and senior hostesses, who have given 50 or more hours' service at the USO Club operated at 16th and Q sts. nw., by the Jewish Welfare Board, received gold USO pins last night in ceremonies celebrating the first anniversary of the servicemen's lounge. More than 125,000 servicemen have been entertained since the lounge's opening.

Joseph Barr, chairman of the Army and Navy committee of the board, presided. Other speakers were Philip Schiff, club director; Francis Keppel, secretary of the Army and Navy committee, and Miss Mabel R. Cook, National USO area representative.

Soldier Interviews

More than 300 recorded interviews with American soldiers of the Middle East and Persian Gulf service commands have been made with a mobile recording unit operated by Maj. Gordon Hittenmark of Washington formerly connected with Radio Station WRC here, the Associated Press reported from Cairo yesterday.

The recordings have arrived in Cairo for transshipment to the United States to be broadcast around mid-January over 30 stations.

Law Forces Wife To Testify Against Mate in Case Here

A wife was compelled to testify against her husband yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage after Sherman Westrich, an investigator for the United States Attorney, searched five days through the District of Columbia Code to find the exception to the rule.

As a result, Joseph H. Nelson, 34, Negro, of 613 L st. nw., was held for grand jury action on a charge of nonsupport of wife and minor children.

Westrich found the exception was in Title 22, Section 904, of the code, stating "husband and wife are competent and compellable witnesses to testify to any and all matters relative to nonsupport cases."

Westrich, besides being largely responsible for the testimony, also was responsible for the arrest. He recognized Nelson's name on a narcotic charge.

Turnage set bond at $500 in the nonsupport case and $1000 on the narcotic count.

Hearing on D. C. Suffrage Bill Has 12 Witnesses Scheduled

Twelve witnesses are scheduled to appear before a Senate District subcommittee hearing at 10:30 a. m. today on Chairman McCarran's bill which would grant home-rule to the District.

Those on the list are Clinton N. Howard, International Reform Federation; Fulton R. Gordon, local real estate man; A. D. Calvert, Lincoln Park Citizens Association; James L. Branca, Communist Party; Marvin M. McLean, Brookland Citizens Association; Joseph W. Leverton, Donald B. Hatmaker, W. S. Burke, Howard Park Civic Association; Sidney R. Katz, Maryland and District Industrial Union Council; A. H. Burdine, 905 I st. nw.; John L. Fowler, Rhode Island Citizens Association, and Davil Watley.

"Baby Broker" Bill

McCarran revealed that he plans to hold subcommittee hearings on the so-called "baby broker" bill, requiring licensing of all child-placing agencies and institutions, before the Christmas holiday. The exact date was not set, however, pending the conclusion of the suffrage hearings.

The Senator from Nevada also announced appointment of Senator Capper (Republican) of Kansas on a subcommittee appointed to consider a bill banning liquor advertising in the District, in place of Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon, who has served on a long list of District subcommittees in recent months. Chairmen of the liquor subcommittee is Senator Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina.

Aid for Dependent Children

McCarran named a three-man committee to hold hearings on a House-approved measure providing aid to dependent children in Washington, thus bringing local standards up to Federal requirements. The Senators are Overton of Louisiana, chairman, and Clark of Idaho, both Democrats, and Bridges (Republican) of New Hampshire.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat) of Alabama also was named as a one-man subcommittee for consideration of a bill making valid servicemens' driving permits for the duration plus six months, without need for renewal.

In the House, it was announced that a subcommittee hearing on a District bill granting the boxing commissioners salaries of $1800 annually will begin at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. Representative Harris (Democrat) of Arkansas, chairman of the Recreation Subcommittee, indicated that the session would be devoted to discussion of wrestling under the jurisdiction of the commission, which is not a part of the bill but was urged by several House District Committee members.

City News In Brief

The ABC board wants a clerk stenographer to help handle 1800 license renewals—it has been wanting one for several weeks.

Now only one person is doing the work, and the process will be a long one to complete if more help is not soon forthcoming, according to Thomas E. Lodge, ABC chairman. The position is a CAF 3 civil service post paying $1620 a year plus $300 bonus.

Aid Urged for Association Salvaging Young Delinquents

With almost 1000 youngsters on Metropolitan Police and Juvenile Court records as first offenders—and with much of the responsibility for their rehabilitation falling on publicly-supported agencies — an appeal for funds to finance the National Probation Association was made yesterday by Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Washington Post.

Urging that everything possible must be done to "salvage" those who come before our courts this year as first offenders, Meyer declared that "the problem of crime and delinquency among youth was never more serious than now under the impact of war."

He described the association, which is engaged nationally in promoting better probation systems to help juvenile delinquents overcome criminal tendencies, as "an indispensable organization" which deserves support by all forward looking citizens.

Much of the future success of our way of life and government depend on the youth of today, he said. And the National Probation Association, working in cooperation with our courts, is helping assure this future "in a definite, tangible way. It is constantly developing, improving and assisting probation services in all courts to help our American boys and girls to become better men and women for the future."

Supporting the association's work, which has resulted in improved probation systems throughout the country, are figures on comparative costs to the community of imprisoning offenders and placing them on probation.

According to the Criminal Justice Association, $25 a year will cover the work of supervising a person on probation; while it costs about $350 annually to jail him.

Contributions should be made payable to the National Probation Association and sent to Eugene Meyer, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Ihlder Defends NCHA Again In D. C. Labor Union Address

"The National Capital Housing Authority has the job of doing those things which private enterprise cannot do at a profit," John Ihlder yesterday told union business agents gathered at the monthly meeting of the Central Labor Union.

He spoke without preparation and in the interest of clearing up recent misinterpretations, he said.

John Reilly, who heads the fourth war loan drive for the District, pointed out that although the District was being asked to contribute a smaller total than they had raised during the third loan drive, more of it must come from individuals. The District is being asked to sell 30 million dollars worth of E bonds —last time only 26½ million were sold. He said individual sales were being asked to head off the buying which breeds inflation.

Comdr. E. J. Spalding, chief of labor relations of the Navy Department and founder of the Seabees, congratulated labor on its contribution to the armed services in providing 80 per cent of its personnel.

He said he went to national labor heads when such a force was still on paper and in 48 hours had 1000 men enlisted. Now these forces defend and build at 62 advanced bases all over the world, he said, and added that no Seabee unit had yet surrendered.

Woman Recalls Life With Man She Is Accused of Slaying

Miss Catherine Hamel, 29, charged with second-degree murder in the slaying of her common-law husband, Walder Frank Brown, 35, yesterday described her love affair for a District Court jury.

Miss Hamel said in a rasping voice, "I don't think a man could have treated a woman better than Frank treated me when he was sober. But just a couple of drinks and he'd get abusive. He'd go back over the troubles we had before."

Brown was shot with a double-barrel pistol on August 11 as he stood nude in a doorway of his apartment at 1340 New York ave. nw.

"He came toward me with an insane gleam in his eye and warned me, 'you don't have the nerve to kill me. I'll kill you before you can fire that gun.' That's what happened," said Miss Hamel.

At the time of the slaying, Miss Hamel said, she was dressed in an underskirt and was trying to get her clothes in order to leave Brown, with whom she had lived for two years. She said he advanced on her and she pulled the trigger only once to frighten him, but two shots were fired and Brown fell fatally wounded.

"I should have left him I guess, but sometimes he was so nice I couldn't," she explained on questioning by Defense Attorney J. H. Herwig.

Miss Hamel said he had often beaten her, and that for long periods she would not see him. When he returned to her, she said, she would often have to support him.

After the witness described the shooting, she began to sob. Justice Edward C. Eicher stopped the case until today.

$21,000,000 for Russian Aid

A 21-million-dollar relief program for 1944, in behalf of Russian victims of Nazi aggression, has been adopted by the board of directors of Russian War Relief, Edward C. Carter, president, announced yesterday.

Representing an increase of nearly one-third over last year's relief fund, the sum will be used to purchase medical supplies, clothing, and other goods vitally needed, all of which are to be transported in Russian ships by the Soviet government.

Declaring that "the customary generosity of the American people and their growing desire to relieve the suffering of an ally who is performing so magnificently against a common foe" is making it possible to expand aid to Russia, Carter cited these figures on work done in the past year:

Relief goods valued at nearly $10,250,000 were shipped to the Soviet Union during the first 10 months of this year. By the close of 1943, the figure is expected to reach 16 million dollars.

The program for next year will be made possible by a nine million dollar allocation expected from the National War Fund, and through gifts expected to total 12 million dollars.

Collections of used clothing, vegetable seeds, watches, medical textbooks, instruments, etc., will continue on a Nation-wide basis, and a new campaign will be launched shortly to collect some three million family utility kits.

Eviction to Be Argued Tomorrow

Proposed eviction of 111 tenants from three apartment buildings at 2618, 2620 and 2622 13th st. nw., will be argued in Municipal Court tomorrow by the Fidelity Mortgage Investment Co., owners of the buildings, and tenants.

District Rent Administrator Robert Cogswell, to whom the tenants appealed last week, said last night he will not "intervene" in the case at this point, but a rent control representative will be present at the proceedings in case the rent question arises.

The company, which recently served eviction notices on nine of the 111 tenants, with admitted plans to similarly serve the rest, claims it wants the buildings for remodeling and accommodation of "more war workers."

D. C. Seeks Deferment Of Principal

The Board of Education took an unprecedented step at yesterday's meeting in asking for the deferment from military duty of John L. Riecks, 32-year-old principal of the newly opened Kramer Junior High School, largest school of its kind in Washington with more than 1400 pupils.

A letter making the deferment request will be sent to the District Personnel Committee for approval and transmission to Selective Service authorities. Married and the father of two children, one of the "pre-Pearl Harbor" variety, Riecks lives at 4409 Elm st. Chevy Chase, D. C.

New School Approved

Construction of a new school for children living in the recently built Garfield development was approved by the board, with purchase of a site at Stanton rd. and Alabama ave. se., to be made as soon as funds are available.

The Garfield Citizens Association earlier had requested an addition to the present Garfield School, pointing out the inconvenient location of the proposed new site which is about a mile from the housing development it will serve.

Other business taken up by the board included approval of a land grant adjoining Stoddert School to the National Capital Housing Authority, which plans erection of a community house for the Glover Park section of Washington.

Ballou Dinner Incident

During the meeting one of the board members charged that Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, and other Negro educators were "deliberately" excluded from the testimonial dinner given Dr. Frank W. Ballou, retired school superintendent, last week.

Maj. Charles H. Fearing, who disclosed the incident to the board members, characterized it as "most undemocratic" and laid responsibility equally on the Board of Trade which sponsored the dinner and "those school officials who assisted in drawing up the guest list."

Negro school officials and teachers had contributed $500 to the $1400 purse presented to Dr. Ballou as a parting gift from the Washington school personnel.

School Board Rule Assailed By Dr. Gannon

The Board of Education rule under which Paul Steiner, 17, was removed from presidency of the Roosevelt High School Student Council and from captaincy of an ROTC company because it was "believed" that he was a member of an unrecognized fraternity, was criticized by one of the board members last night. Dr. James A. Gannon, the board member, said that the rule attempts to interfere with parental jurisdiction.

Dr. Gannon is a member of the board's three-man student activities committee which is expected to consider possible revocation of the rule at its next meeting.

Young Steiner, son of Mrs. Henrietta Steiner, 4845 Illinois ave. nw., denied last night that he was a member of any secret fraternity. School officials said the "weight of evidence" obtained in a careful investigation of the matter indicated that he was a member. Action in the case was taken a month ago but revealed, by Steiner, only yesterday.

The rule, put in effect by the board in 1925, prohibits any student belonging to an unrecognized fraternity from holding any office in extracurricular activities or as officership in the ROTC.

"School board rules generally give the schools supervision over the student from the time he leaves home until he returns home," Dr. Gannon said. "The rule under which the boy was removed attempts to interfere with the social affairs of the students, which is actually the business of parents.

"A good way to get rid of that rule is to enforce it vigorously, and we might also pass a rule not to recognized any fraternities, which would probably be a good idea," Dr. Gannon said

Dr. Gannon said he felt that Miss May P. Bradshaw, school principal who removed Steiner from the offices, was perfectly justified.

"That's what she should have done and I'm back of her 100 per cent," he said.

Aware That Man Is Losing Interest in Her, After Less Than a Year's Close Friendship, Girl Asks How She Can Regain Lost Ground

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have known a young man for several years; but until he came to Washington a year ago, we had never dated. During the past year, until about six weeks ago, we spent much of our leisure time together, as we had many interests in common, and were particularly interested in one sport which is my special hobby nowadays; and, I hope, my livelihood later. However, we don't seem to have as much to talk about as we once did; and I am wondering if he has found another heart interest; or whether he was afraid we were becoming too close—since he has said he isn't very interested in marriage.

He has a very good background and has been very successful, financially. I was educated in private schools and have always been well provided for; but still, I believe I have my feet on the ground, and know the value of good sense, good character and responsible behavior. I have made excellent contacts through my professional position and sports interests here, which have helped me in social circles.

I do not know whether I am in love with this man, who is seven years my senior; but I do know that if anything should happen to take him away from Washington, I would be heartbroken. I can go to him when something is disturbing me, and he puts my mind at ease. Can you tell me what I might do to regain what we have lost? SANDRA.

Girl Lacks Talent For "Setting Pace"

DEAR SANDRA: If you don't have as much to talk about as you once did, it must mean that the man has more or less talked himself out, during the year, on the subject of himself and his special interests, which are similar to yours; and that you lack the talent of being a stimulating conversationalist; or of being a subtly provocative manipulator of conversation on the other fellow's part. Which would explain why, if he isn't in love with you, nor looking for a wife, he might gradually grow bored with the sentimental alliance, which doubtless had its inception principally in considerations of "auld lang syne,"—when he first arrived here, a stranger to Washington, and rather looked to you to be his social cicerone.

Also, since he is a personable, affluent bachelor of first-rate background, it is to be expected that he would find women angling for his attentions, wherever he goes,—with the result that unless and until his heart is finally "given," he always will be taking new flyers in romance, from time to time. And I suppose there is nothing he would like less,—nothing he would rather sidestep,—than any intimations on the part of a casual close friend of the opposite sex, that she was beginning to count confidently on him as her constant swain and social buckler. And the mournful quality of your reaction to his noncommittal, easy-gaited drift toward new pastures,—which leaves you on the outer boundary of his affairs, as one among many agreeable acquaintances,—suggests that you had been building, more seriously and unmistakably than you perhaps realized, on the hope and ambition of being married to him.

Man's on Defensive Against Her Designs

THE FACT that he has seen fit to explain, in so many words, that he isn't much interested in marriage, indicates that he felt some declaration-of-intent was owing you; that he felt, in other words, apologetically on the defensive against your innocently evident matrimonial designs upon him—which you, womanlike, very likely were foresightedly spinning, without knowing for sure just how greatly you cared for him. Women—practical creatures that they are, far less romantic than men, as a rule—usually figure it is time enough to probe their own feelings and establish their final intent, when and after they have brought the male figuratively to his knees, offering marriage.

My estimate of your feeling is this: You had not so much grown to love the man this past year, as you had grown comfortably habituated to depending upon him, as a kind of trusty backlog (social and emotional) in your Washington set-up. And you would not be so much heartbroken if he become too preoccupied with other friends to have time for you—or if he left Washington—as you would be dismayed and inconvenienced by the disappearance of your solacing backlog, which disappearance would confront you with the tiresome alternatives of (a) undergoing temporary social eclipse, due to lack of dependable squire; or (b) taxing all your resources, of time, energy, "contacts" and personal come-hither, in a spirited campaign to annex an acceptable substitute best beau.

Dash of Mystery Lends Enchantment

AS FOR HOW you might infuse new life and zest into the relationship—if it can be done, it can only be by you yourself branching out adventurously into fresh alliances and further fields of interest, to which the man is a stranger; thus investing your own personality and performance with a piquant flavor of surprise and tantalizing mystery, which will needle him out of his lethargic boredom into a brisk reaction of half-jealous, admiring inquiry and pursuit.

The other is Chinese, and it took some doing to translate the artistry of Chinese cooking into a book with definite measurements and terms that any housewife can follow. The fish recipes are supposed to be especially good. Around $1.

Any of these gifts would please the most discerning person. If you'd like further information, call NAtional 4200, Extension 324, between 9 a. m. and 5:30.

Fat Not Inherited; Influenced by Bone Structure and Height

By Ida Jean Kain

You ancestors had a lot to do with what you ought to weigh. They handed you a characteristic, family build, and no amount of calorie cutting and exercise will change that. But if you are overweight, they had nothing to do with it. You can't inherit fat. You accumulate it by over-eating.

You look and feel best at the weight that is normal for your framework. To figure what it should be, go by the size of your bones, not by height alone, nor by any chart based on height and age.

Here is an easy and accurate way of figuring your normal weight. Start with a basic weight for the first five feet of your height, according to whether your build is medium, slight, or stocky.

We'll say your have a medium build—your bones are not exceptionally large or small. The basic weight for your first five feet of height is 105 pounds. Start with that and allow five pounds for each inch over that weight.

If you have very small bones, start with 100 pounds for the first 5 feet; or, with large ones, go up to 110 pounds. After you have settled on your basic weight, add 3 pounds for each inch of height over 5 feet, or subtract 5 pounds for each inch under. There's an exception—the fine figure of a woman type, who may be entitled to 10 per cent more weight than would be normal for the woman with the stocky frame.

The estimated average height for women is 5 feet, 4 inches. With a medium frame, normal weight for this height is 125 pounds. With a slight frame, it drops down to 120 pounds. With a stocky frame, it goes up to 130 pounds. And the woman of the same height with a very large frame can tip the scales at 143 pounds without being overweight.

Up to the age of 25 or thereabouts, our doctors look on a few extra pounds as health insurance. But past 30, weight that is above normal drags you down. This doesn't mean it is all right to be too thin. With too little weight, you don't have reserve vitality—you have "nerves."

Youth Needs Training For Marriage and Home, Says P-T Congress Head

By Genevieve Reynolds

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

MRS. HASTINGS

If alert Mrs. William A. Hastings, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, gets her way postwar education will emphasize preparation for home and marriage relationships.

"Such courses should be given in junior as well as senior high schools," she said. "Girls should be taugh the tangible qualities of good cooking and budgeting. But the intangibles should not be overlooked. They should know much of husband - wife relationships. Nor should the boys be overlooked in the training. They need it the same as the girls.

This progressive educator, who hails from Madison, Wis., also advocates the teaching of more history with stress on the United States' relation to other countries. Too, she is in favor of individual education—that is, permitting the student to choose his or her own courses. However, she would put more discipline for citizenship responsibilities into the school curricula. Nor would she neglect languages and history for vocational subjects. Both would be given equal emphasis.

Favors Hot Lunches

Mrs. Hastings hopes that hot school lunches will be permanent; that they will be provided for the good of the children themselves, because they're good nutrition, not as a purely relief project to provide someone with a job. In the beginning, these lunches were prepared and served to give relief jobs, she explained.

Concerned over the large number of boys taken from the school into the armed forces, she expressed a hope that correspondence courses would be made available for those who for some reason or other cannot return to the classrooms. This method, she thinks, is preferable to granting diplomas when necessary subjects are omitted.

Asked about what can be done to lessen juvenile delinquency, Mrs. Hastings replied: "More and better home training. Yet, I realize that the home itself now is going through a difficult time. Either for patriotic or economic reasons both mother and father are working. In such cases the communities are responsible, and should provide all possible facilities to look after the youngsters."

Married Early

Those who followed Cupid instead of completing their college degree might well follow the example of active Mrs. Hastings. She met and married her husband after completing high school. Then the children came. As soon as they were of school age, she entered the University of Wisconsin. At the time her eldest son was getting his bachelor's degree, she was taking a master's.

It wasn't easy to get the children off to school, her husband off to work, the household chores finished and then to school herself. Each day she would say to herself, "I can't do it." Then, "I'll try one more week." The weeks stretched into years and the result—a B.A. and M.A. degree.

Through her children she became interested in P-TA work. Later she was elected president of the local group, then the Wisconsin P-TA, where she served a four-year term. Also, she was president of the Madison Woman's City Club. One of her chief interests is the Presbyterian Church's Student Center Foundation. The church has become a social center for the young people in the town.

Agile, youthful minded Mrs. Hastings thinks that women would stay young longer if they kept an active interest in organizations and people. She herself is a good exponent of this theory.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

That Christmas Letter

The doleful letter from home is still proving a problem in the American fighter's morale, reports the Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, Bishop of Massachusetts, who recently returned from a visit to Alaska and the Aleutions. The bishop told of wives' writing their soldier husbands for divorces, of retailing their ailments and otherwise spreading depression. He told of a chaplain who was trying to help the morale of other men, yet whose wife was writing him about changing doctors and how worried her mother had become over her condition.

Few letter writers can withstand the urge to chronicle their minor illnesses. The present influenza epidemic presents them a special temptation as it is the biggest and most dramatic home news of the day. Bad news in the home or community always seems to letter writers more interesting and dramatic than the good—probably because the latter is taken for granted.

Bucking Up Of Men Needed

If there ever was a time when Americans at home needed to take themselves in hand, forget their own petty troubles and write cheerful, encouraging letters it is now. In the first place it is the Christmas season. In the second, great numbers of our fighting men in England, Italy, Africa and the South Pacific are girding themselves for a great challenge—an offensive that, it is hoped, will shorten the war and bring them home again. To disturb their minds and lower their spirits and efficiency unnecessarily at this time is to render effective aid to the enemy. Any woman who writes a childish, selfish, complaining letter does just that. Eager as the men are for mail, there are times when no news is better than a hypochondriac's missive.

Here is one small contribution toward winning the war that every woman who writes to a serviceman could make this Christmas—she could write a completely cheerful letter, one in which she did not:

Discuss in an ominous manner the so-called flu epidemic; tell how miserable she or other members of his family were from it; relate how this person or that one was suffering from "a terrible cold"; boastfully quote city and national statistics on the number of victims;

Enumerate all the illnesses and reverses that had come to all of her friends and acquaintancees;

Present the harrowing details of the Christmas shopping rush and tell how difficult it was going to be to have any Christmas presents or any fun because of the crowds, the inefficient clerks and the goods shortages;

Let him know (especially if he were at Tarawa or Salerno) of the mobs of women clawing at expensive slips, nightgowns, robes,, jeweled sprays, perfume, cosmetics, etc.; or of the mass attack on the fur coats; or of the men who were "smart enough" to cache plenty of Scotch before the liquor drought;

Hard Life on The Home Front

Complain of the turkey shortage which is forcing the family to "get along" with chicken or capon or even duck for the Christmas dinner or how hard it's going to be to cook a good dinner with oleomargarine and to have to eliminate the fondant from the stuffed dates because of the sugar shortage; point out plaintively that she supposes he'll have more to eat this Christmas than the folks at home—at least the papers say he's going to have turkey;

Play the old record about gasoline, of having to stay cooped up at home and of never going anywhere, of riding on crowded buses and streetcars, of having to walk three or four (or even six) blocks to the store and of having to lug home groceries and parcels;

Whine about the coal and fuel shortage and tell of having to wear a sweater about the house in the middle of the day;

Drag in the income tax and the coming bond drive and enumerate the high prices on everything, especially food, with the intimation that no one is really getting enough to eat;

Dwell on how overworked she is either at office or home; complain of her surroundings, especially if she is back home with mother or living with in-laws;

Tell (if she is a wife or sweetheart) of how the 4-F wolves are pursuing her with attentions;

Dismally picture the way "they" are running everything in Washington; pass on rumored tales of this or that general's or civic administrators' inefficiency;

Mention anything, even for the sake of making news that would cause a man at camp or the front a moment of unnecessary anxiety or depression, or that would raise the shadow of a question in his mind as to whether things back home are worth fighting for.

MRS. FRANK WHELCHEL

Miss Anne Harcourt Shows Portrait

Miss Anne Harcourt, who with her sister, Miss Aletha Harcourt, formed a painting pair, has changed her smock for a uniform and is now a WREN in the service of her country.

It was some years ago that these two young artists first arrived in Washington and took a studio on Twentieth st. They had come from the Orient and a stay in Bermuda and had any number of charming water color landscapes hanging on their studio walls of scenes of their travels.

Equally gifted as portrait painters, the sister artists were not long in getting several commissions for portraits. They did one of Mrs. Jerauld Wright, wife of Captain Wright USN, who distinguished himself in the North African campaign; another of David Williams, then with the State Department, and still another of Mrs. Winston Elting.

The Harcourt sisters then disappeared from the Washington scene but Miss Anne Harcourt turned up again in 1939, leaving her sister in England. She was guest of honor at a late afternoon party on Sunday given by Miss Helene Kravadze at the Mayflower, when Miss Kravadze's portrait by Miss Harcourt was on view.

Miss Harcourt is also painting several British subjects who are now in Washington for the duration and when completed the pictures will be sent home to their families.

Miss Johnson, Rep. Whelchel Are Married

In a simply arranged ceremony at 6 o'clock last evening, Miss Ruth Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson of Center, Ga., became the bride of Representative Frank Whelchel of Georgia with the Rev. Peter Marshall officiating in the chapel of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The bride and bridegroom were unattended. For the ceremony the bride wore a costume of ice blue satin with a street length skirt and fitted long-sleeved jacket. Her hat was a halo effect of matching satin from which fell a shoulder length blue veil. She wore a corsage of white orchids.

After a wedding reception at the Shoreham Representative and Mrs. Welchel left for Quebec and will spend their honeymoon at the Chateau Frontenac. They will live at the General Scott Apartments on Scott Circle when they return.

Mrs. Hillyer C. Godfrey, wife of Lieutenant Godfrey, Air Corps, and daughter of Representative Godfrey, was here from Gainesville, Ga., for the ceremony. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jeff D. Whelchel of Gainesville and the late Mr. Welchel. The bride attended school in Columbus, Ga., and the University of Georgia at Athens. She has been living in Washington for several years and is with the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Krouskop—Barrows

In an 8 o'clock ceremony last evening Miss Constance Asenath Barrows, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Duke Barrows, became the bride of Ned Carter Krouskop. The Rev. Edward G. Latch officiated.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a street-length suit of white wool with an orchid corsage. Miss Kathryn Hershey, her maid of honor, wore a frock of powder blue gabardine with a corsage of pink carnations. Aaron A. Layne, jr., was best man.

Following a trip to Dayton, Ohio, to visit the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Krouskop, the newly wedded couple will make their home here at 1236 Euclid st. The former Miss Barrows attended American University, where she was a member of Cap and Gown, Pi Delta Epsilon and Kappa Delta. She is now employed in the library of The Washington Post.

Mr. Krouskop, who is employed at the Bureau of Standards, is also continuing his course at American University. He is president of Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity there.

Here's Happy Holiday Plan for Officers Spending Xmas Here

United Nations Officers Club Offers Five-Day Round of Festivities

Particularly anxious that the officer who can't get home for Christmas may have happy holidays in Washington is the Christmas planning committee of the Officers' Service Club for the United Nations at the Burlington Hotel, 1120 Vermont ave. The committee members include Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, Mrs. John Russell Deane, Mrs. Reginald Foster, Mrs. Arthur Gardner, Mrs. Clyde Parker, Mrs. Hugh J. Casey and Mrs. Arthur Fowler. They have planned entertainment which begins with a pre-Christmas dance December 22, and carries him through to an afternoon tea-dance the day after Santa Claus has come and gone.

At 9 p. m. on Wednesday, December 22, the officer away from home can begin Christmas festivities by attending the dance for men and women officers at the Officers' Club at the Burlington. The dance will be free and there will be an orchestra from the Navy School of Music. All men and women officers are invited, and if the dance is a return performance of the last men and women officers' dance, which was well attended and evenly divided, he will be off to a gay start.

On Christmas Eve if he attends the free dance which begins at the Officers' Club at the Burlington at 8:30, he will see Santa Claus with his pack, dance with hostesses who are daughters of Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers themselves, and sing carols during intermission.

If on Christmas afternoon things seem quiet, as they sometimes do, he may wish to drop by the club, where there will be open house between 2 and 6 and where Mrs. Arthur Fowler will serve fruit cake and punch, assisted by the hostesses.

On Christmas night our friend will attend the officers' dance at the Statler Hotel, which is sponsored by the Officers' Service Club of the United Nations. The orchestra begins playing at 9 o'clock in the Congressional Room. If he is alone, his stag ticket, which he can purchase at the door, will be $1.10; if he takes a young lady the ticket will be $1.65 for the two of them.

The day after Christmas there will be a tea-dance for officers at the Officers' Service Club at the Burlington Hotel from 4 until 7. The dance will be free; there will be an orchestra and plenty of hostesses.

Mrs. Smith Is Luncheon Hostess

Adjourning from redoubled efforts to meet the great demands for Christmas corsages, made of war stamps, the Corsage Committee of the Congressional Club met with Mrs. Lawrence Smith, wife of the representative from Wisconsin, for luncheon at the Hotel 2400 yesterday. Work on the numerous orders for corsages went on at the apartment of Mrs. Dean Taylor at the Dorchester House.

Members of the committee present included Mrs. Hal Holmes, Mrs. Frank Barrett, Mrs. Clarence Hancock, Mrs. Bernard Kearney, and Mrs. Foster Stearns.

Mrs. James Souby Gives Luncheon

Lady Self, wife of Sir Henry Self, and Mrs. George Bradford, who will leave soon for her home in New York after being here for several months, were the guests in whose honor Mrs. James M. Souby entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham.

Other guests were Lady Sansom, Lady Fairey, Mrs. Tomas Caligas, Countess de Merenches, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. John Sturrock, Mrs. Allan Tappan, Mrs. Albert Mengel, Mrs. Richard F. Cooper, and Mrs. John H. Berry.

Final Notes on the Third British 'Invasion' of America—The First Friendly One; Also, Largest and Most Successful

(This is the last of five articles on the British influx to Washington—and its result—in recent years.)

THERE'S NO DOUBT about it—the British contingent in Washington today is negotiating double-time duty. Every member is promoting his Nation's business over the teacups and dinner tables, as well as across office desks.

Under the clever management of the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax, the British Embassy is once more THE foreign residence in Washington. Chiefs of the British missions and British officers—men and women—are both prominent and popular in American social circles.

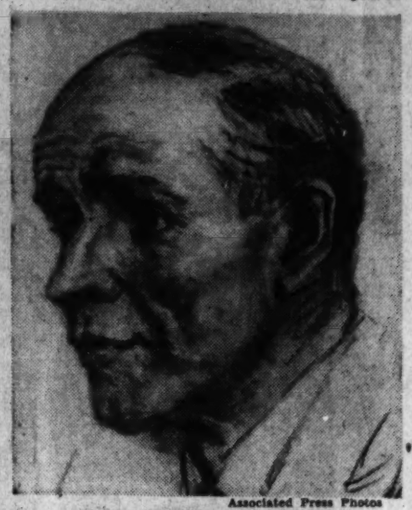
The British Embassy's relations with the press have changed completely in the past few years. Dinner lists are rarely available, but inquiries about them, or anything else on the embassy social calendar, are met with consistently courteous replies. Gone are the days when a well-meaning but sharply speaking secretary infuriated all news writers with whom she happened to come in contact.

Yet, some reporters are still smarting under the verbal blows she inflicted . . . and their feeling toward that Empire upon which the sun never sets has been colored considerably as a result. Only the other evening I heard a society writer recalling an incident in which she and the secretary in question were involved some years ago. Seems the reporter had taken the liberty to revise a typed list of dinner guests which had been isued grandiose fashion by the Embassy. The reporter was merely observing the American newspaper custom of inserting first names, but when the dinner account appeared in print, the social secretary protested heatedly. "This must not happen again," she demanded. "Lady Lindsay's guests do not need identifying by first name. They are so well known!!"

BRITISH RELATIONS with the American press, and the public as a whole, took a noticeable upswing shortly after the arrival of a softly speaking, blonde woman who arrived early in 1941 to take over a specially created public relations post at the British Embassy.

Within a comparatively short time, she was to become Britain's first full-fledged woman diplomat; was to be given the rank of First Secretary in October, 1942. Now listed in the diplomatic blue book as M. A. C. McGeachey, she was known to her friends as "Craig." Back in her Canadian college days when she signed her name Mary Craig McGeachey, there were four other Marys in her group, and since she had a difficult last name (the McGeachey is pronounced McGehhy, the last syllable being swallowed, typical British style) friends decided on Craig.

Graybeards who loathe any innovation, may have wondered what the British Empire was coming to—when a woman was appointed to the Diplomatic Corps; but if they did, nobody paid any attention. Miss McGeachey's appointment was received with generous applause on both sides of the Atlantic.



Associated Press Photos

THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR
as portrayed by James Mongomery Flagg in a 15-minute sketch shortly after Viscount Halifax arrived in Washington. The artist described the envoy as "looking like a composite of Fred Astaire and Sinclair Lewis with a dash of Socrates."

EVEN WITH THE help of an able embassy staff, headed by an Ambassador whose popularity has increased noticeably in the past year, and a conscientious as well as charming British contingent in 31 separate missions, the Third British "Invasion" has not, however, completely obliterated anti-British sentiment either in Washington, or America as a whole.

Periodically there is a flare-up and John Bull comes in for a beating on the floors of Congress, in Capital drawing rooms, or in the still-strong isolationist groups throughout America. But more and more that tendency is coming to be recognized for what it is—either a remnant of Nazi propaganda, or a round-about attack on the Administration. In other words, it is not so much anti-English as anti-Roosevelt.

Fortunately such flare-ups are becoming less numerous as the war goes on . . . and each one carries far less weight than it might have in the past. In spirit as well as organization, a strengthening in unity of war effort between Washington and London is evincing itself as a phenomenon in our history and in that of England.

Perhaps it portends continuing cooperation between the two countries and a lasting friendship that may be one of the chief reasons that both the United States and England will continue to maintain their position of importance in the history of the world.

'Outgrown' Shop Plans One-Day Sale At Junior League

Take the clothes a well child has grown too big for, sell them for the benefit of a sick child and you have the formula for Outgrown, the shop run by the Junior League of Washington. Opened a little over a year ago, the shop will be closed all day today to prepare for an "all-out special one day sale" to be held tomorrow.

Mrs. James D. Henry, chairman, and Mrs. Davis Porter, guest manager, have arranged to take over the big gallery down stairs at the Junior League in addition to the shop's regular space. Since the war has done away with "follies," balls and the horse show it has become necessary for the league to look for other sources of income to meet its obligations and Outgrown is one of the means by which it is possible to keep up the work of the league-supported Social Service Department at Children's Hospital.

Bolivian Solon Arrives For Capital Visit

As the "Good-Neighbor" policy continues to broaden in its scope and a stream of Latin-American visitors pours into the Capital, the name of Dr. Manuel Carrasco., president of the Bolivian Senate, joins the State Department guest list.

Dr. Carrasco, one of the outstanding journalists and lawyers in Bolivia, arrived yesterday afternoon by plane from Miami on the last leg of his mission here, where he will confer with the Bolivian Ambassador and the State Department, regarding the furnishing of tin and other critical war materials by Bolivia to this Nation and her Allies.

Though this is his first visit to Washington, he has been in the United States before, having visited Miami following the Bar Association meeting in Cuba last year.

The one-time editor of Ed Diario in La Paz has also been minister of public works and was minister of foreign affairs when peace plans were negotiated between Uruguay and Paraguay in the Buenos Aires meeting. He is senator from the Bolivian State of Cochabamba.

Miss Dorothy Winifred Cook Wed to Lieut. Charles McCall

Miss Shirley Hearst and Mrs. Marietta Barnhouse Are Recent Brides

Palms and baskets of white flowers decorated the altar of the Calvary Baptist Church Friday night for the candlelight ceremony at which Miss Dorothy Winifred Cook became the bride of Lieut. Charles DeWitt McCall, U. S. Navy.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur Edward Cook and the late Mr. Cook, who was Assistant Secretary of Labor during the Coolidge and Hoover Administrations.

Lieutenant McCall, who has just returned from submarine duty in the Pacific, is the son of Mrs. Frederic McCall of Binghamton, N. Y., and the late Dr. McCall.

Officiating at the 8 o'clock service was the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford. Don Francisco, Assistant Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, gave the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of white lace, designed with gathered skirt and long train, and the neckline outlined with a design of seed pearls. Her three-quarter-length veil was held by a tiara of lace and she carried a bouquet of orchids, roses and bouvardia. Miss Barbara A. Vail, the maid of honor, was costumed in yellow brocade taffeta. Her matching shoulder-length veil was held with velvet bows and she carried a bouquet of purple iris.

Bridesmaids were Miss Georgia McCall and Mrs. Austin E. Holloway, wearing blue taffeta, and Miss Catherine Callender and Miss Julia A. English, costumed in rose taffeta. All carried bouquets of pale pink carnations. Ensign Robert Guiendon served as best man, and ushering were Lieut. Harold Weiler, Lieut. John F. Snyder, the Rev. Edwin H. Tuller and Elwyn Bonnell.

A reception followed in Burrall Hall. The couple left later for a wedding trip to New York and will make their home in New London, Conn. The bride attended Mary Washington College and is a member of Delta Beta Sigma Sorority. Lieutenant McCall received his degree from the Naval Academy in 1939.

Barnett—Hearst

Miss Shirley Hearst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Eugene Hearst of Chevy Chase, was married to Lieut. William Ross Barnett, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett of Oakland, Calif., on Wednesday, December 8 at 5 o'clock, in the chapel of the Naval Center at Bethesda. The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by Miss Louise Latimer. Lieut. David La Hue, shipmate of the bridegroom, was his best man. A buffet supper at the home of the bride's parents fololwed the ceremony.

The bride attended American University. Lieutenant Barnett was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1942, and recently returned from duty in the South Pacific where he was an officer aboard the USS Helena, sunk in the battle of Kula Gulf. The couple will make their home in Philadelphia.

McBride—Barnhouse

Mrs. Jules Hancart of Charleston, W. Va., announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Marietta Barnhouse, to Pfc. Walter McBride, AUS. The ceremony took place on Wednesday in St. Paul's Catholic Church, with Father Burns officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by Ephraim Brinson. Bridesmaids were Miss Marcella Hancart, sister of the bride, and Miss Marie G. Aue. William McBride, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Francis McBride, S2c, and James McBride, brothers of the bridegroom.

The bride is connected with the Maritime Commission. Before entering the service, the bridegroom was connected with The Washington Post.

Purely Personal

Her husband is now stationed at the Naval Air Base at Patuxent River, Md.

Mrs. Robert Fauntleroy Turner of Washington will go to Middleburg, Va., next week to spend the Christmas holidays with Miss Edith Corse at Westwood.

P. J. Lennox, Catholic U. Professor, Dies

Patrick Joseph Lennox, 81, writer, scholar and former professor of English literature at Catholic University, died yesterday evening at his home, 1820 G st. nw.

The author of extensive works on historical and literary subjects and member of The Washington Post editorial staff for 20 years prior to 1933, Mr. Lennox was found unconscious in his quarters at 4 p. m. yesterday by Malcolm S. Watson, with whom he shared his apartment.

Summoned by Watson to attend the stricken man, Dr. John Baber of 1819 G st. nw. pronounced him dead two hours later.

Mr. Lennox was born in Ireland, where he taught in several universities before coming to this country. He became a citizen in 1907. That year he joined the faculty of Catholic University, where he taught until his retirement in 1939, when he was decorated by the Pope with the Bene Merenti medal "for long, loyal, and faithful service."

Burial will be from the home of his sister, Mrs. Annie Hines, in Lynn, Mass., where his body will be sent today from Hines Funeral Home.

Hans Kindler Substitutes For Milhaud

By Ray C. B. Brown

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday night in Constitution Hall. Program: Herzliebster Jesus (Bach), Sharazad Suite (Rimski-Korsakov), Provencal Suite (Milhaud), Fireworks (Stravinski), Berceuse and Finale from The Fire Bird (Stravinski).

Disappointment was in store last evening for those who had not read their daily newspaper and expected to see Darius Milhaud conduct the National Symphony Orchestra in two of his compositions. Hans Kindler rescued what he could from the program wreckage caused by the illness of the distinguished French composer, and conducted the "Provencal Suite" with an admirable projection of its luminosity and verve, but the Milhaud symphony was irretrievably lost as far as this concert was concerned. In its place Dr. Kindler thrust some early Stravinski music: "Feu d'Artifice" and the last two numbers from "Zhar Ptitza" ballet suite. The audience made the best of an unfortunate situation, and gave the conductor and orchestra many applausive rewards.

The concert began in an elegiac mood with the playing of Bach's version of Crueger's chorale, "Herzliebster Jesus," in memory of Miss Alice J. Clapp, who was an honorary vice president and member of the board of directors of the Orchestra Association. This touching tribute was followed by a respectful silence on the part of the listeners who gave thought to the honored woman who had done much for the cause of music in Washington.

One wonders why we continue to use the French spelling, "Scheherazade," for the ever-entertaining Arabian Nights suite which Rimski-Korsakov drew from his lively imagination. Under any name, however, the music never loses its evocative quality.

Milhaud's "Provencal Suite" made an immediate hit with its genial humor, its wealth of regional melodies, and its piquant harmonies.

Fats Waller, Colored Band Leader, Dies

Kansas City, Dec. 15 (AP).—Fats Waller, 39, noted Negro dance band leader, died today on a train in the Kansas City Union Station. He was returning to New York after a two weeks' engagement in Los Angeles.

Waller, known privately as Thomas Wright Waller, attended Paderewski concerts in New York at the age of 10 studied under Carl Bohm and Leopold Godowski, and regarded boogie-woogie as definitely beneath his nimbly-fingered piano.

The 278-pound Fats composed such jazz hits as "Ain't Misbehavin'," "Feets' Too Big," the music for "Connie's Hot Chocolates," "Keep Shufflin" and the current Broadway succes, "Early to Bed."

He was equally famous in Britain and Scandinavia and where he spent a total of 20 weeks in 1938 and 1939.

Factual Fables of Famous Labels

"KISS THE BOYS GOODBYE" HAS BEEN THE THEME SONG OF MILLIONS OF AMERICAN WOMEN, WEARERS OF RED CROSS (GOLD-CROSS) SHOES FOR MORE THAN 50 YEARS

No. 2 IN A SERIES

When the Maine was sunk in 1898, the boys marched off to war . . . the boys who later fought with Teddy Roosevelt at San Juan Hill, and with Dewey at Manila Bay. Just seven years before, a new industry was born in America . . . and the first label was stamped on a pair of Red Cross Shoes.

1898

The belles of the day, with patriotic pride, "kissed the boys goodbye" . . . just as they're doing today. Here is a typical charmer of 1898, with her elaborate pompadour, and her high-laced Red Cross Shoes . . . to top footwear-fashion of that era.

1900

Just about that time, the big-wigs of the Red Cross shoe plant were holding forth in executive session . . . and putting their stamp of approval on their first advertising campaign . . . in the Ladies' Home Journal . . . their first venture into national advertising and national distribution.

1917

Another generation of American fighting men donned the uniform in 1917, when America was drawn into the first World War. Again American wives and sweethearts "kissed the boys goodbye" . . . and sent them off to Chateau-Thierry . . . and Verdun . . . and thence to final victory.

1917

Here's the American girl of 1917 . . . in bobble-skirt and broad-brimmed hat—and, of course, in Red Cross Shoes . . . now a favorite footwear fashion throughout the nation . . . and destined to grow in popularity until public demand forced production up to the staggering figure of 16,000 pairs a day. It was during this period (in 1931 to be exact) that The Hecht Co. became Washington headquarters for Red Cross Shoes.

1941

Another generation of Americans have grown to manhood, when the clouds of war begin to gather for the second World Conflict. Another generation of Red Cross Shoe executives meet to consider the President's request that the name of "Red Cross" be eliminated from all commercial usage. No law was passed . . . but in sympathy with the President's request "Red Cross" shoes were re-named "Gold Cross" shoes.

1942

Once again in 1942, the women of America "kiss the boys goodbye" . . . and the nation arms for total war . . . rationing is established in many essential commodities . . . foods, autos, tires, appliances, footwear . . . and the people of America back up their boys by putting every extra dollar into War Bonds.

1943

And here is the typical American girl of 1943 . . . thousands of her counterpart are in the WACS and WAVES, in the AWVS . . . in the Red Cross and canteen work. You'll recognize the hair-do . . . and you'll recognize the broad American smile of confidence . . . and you'll recognize the footwear as the famous (Red) Gold Cross Shoes, sold exclusively in Washington at The Hecht Co.
